Candidates for Borough Council & Township Committee Selected by Princeton's Two Republican Organizations

Princeton's two Republican organizations, who have not won many elections in recent years, have announced the selection of candidates, who, they hope, will be able to win seats on Borough Council and Township Committee next November.

The Borough Republican Committee announced on Tuesday that Melody Richards and Marilyn Lynch will run for Council, which currently is composed of all Democrats. They will face incumbents Mildred Trotman and David Goldfarb.

Both candidates are Republican committee people, a fact which Borough G.O.P. Chair Pat Strazza said pleased her. "I think they are strong candidates," said Ms. Strazza. "Marilyn has been here a number of years and Melody is a newcomer. It should be a nice combination."

Borough Council has been composed largely of Democrats for more than a decade. An exception was Ray Wadsworth, who served from 1992 to 1995. He lost to Democrats Mark Freda and Arthur Saylor in November of 1994.

Prior to that, Republican Dick Woodbridge served in the late eighties. He resigned from Council in the latter part of 1987 when he moved to Princeton Township. Rodney Fisk, who served until January, 1989, was appointed in his place.

Marilyn Lynch, a resident of Gordon Way, manages Health and Ancillary Services for the State Department of Health's WIC Program, which serves 146,000 women, infants and children each month. Prior to joining the Department of Health she was a primary school teacher.

Ms. Lynch has lived in Princeton since 1972. While her two daughters were in the Princeton Regional School District, she was involved in school activities. She is a former member of the Borough Traffic and

Three Zoning Options Outlined By Board for Harris Rd. Houses

The Planning Board's Zoning Amendment Review Committee (ZARC) is planning to forward to Township Committee three options for how the houses on the east side of Harris Road in the hospital block might be zoned.

ZARC members are divided as to which of the options they want to recommend, so the options will be forwarded with one page "opinions" from each member. Members of People for the Preservation of Residential Princeton who have been attending ZARC meetings on this subject have also been invited to submit opinions which will be forwarded along with relevant information that has been gathered in three ZARC meetings

New Agreement for Teachers Is Expected to Be Announced

At its meeting scheduled for Tuesday night, April 9, the School Board was expected to announce that a contract agreement has been reached with the teachers' union.

According to a source close to the schools, agreement was reached during a lengthy negotiating session that began Monday afternoon. Fact Finder Robert Glasson was also at the meeting.

Neither Ruth Boulet, leader of the School Board's negotiating team, nor Ken Raybuck, president of the Princeton Regional Education Association, returned repeated phone calls on Tuesday.

No details were available on the agreement. And none will be announced until it is ratified by both sides. The teachers' union is expected to meet April 16 for its ratification vote.

If ratified, the terms of the new contract would be retroactive to June 30, 1995, when the previous contract expired.

Negotiations have been protracted, going from face-to-face bargaining that began in early 1995 through unsuccessful mediation and then into fact-finding.

Both sides placed an information blackout on the talks in October. At that time, the union was seeking a 4 percent increase in the first year of a three-year contract, with increases of 3 percent in each of the following years. This was outside the longevity increment, which equals almost 2 percent the first year and falls off slightly in the next two.

The School Board was then offering a 3.1 percent increase the first year, 3 percent the second, and 2.7 percent the third. These increases included the increment.

Michael Perna

gers University, she is a member of the English-Speaking Union. She is also Republican Committeewoman for District 9, and secretary and public relations writer for the Republican Association of Princeton. She is a member of the Lutheran Church of the Messiah, Princeton.

Ms. Richards, who was born in Seattle, Wash., received her education at the Cornish Institute of Allied Arts.

"We need Republican representation in Borough Hall to have more of a two-party Council," she said. Ms. Richards added that she was looking forward to meeting more people and finding out their needs.

Township Republicans have selected Michael A. Perna and Colin M. Vonvorys as their candidates for Township Committee. They will face Democrats Steve Frakt and Michele Tuck, who are seeking their second consecutive three-year terms on Committee.

Mr. Perna, 44, was born and raised in Princeton. He earned an associate degree in social sciences from Mercer County Community College and received a bachelor of arts degree in history from Rider University, where he has taken graduate courses leading to a master's degree in public administration.

In addition to his own landscaping company, Mr. Perna is employed by Princeton Medical Center. He is a member of Engine Company No. 3 where he serves as a first lieutenant and is a member of the Board of Engineers. He is also a member of the Italian-American Sportsman's Club and Princeton-Pettoranello Foundation and is active in youth sports.

Mr. Perna lives with his wife Diane and three children on Carnahan Place.

Mr. Vonvorys, 34, is a graduate of the Annenberg School of Communications at the University of Pennsylvania with a bachelor of arts degree in communications. He is currently taking post-graduate courses in data processing and Cobol programming. He is a product specialist engaged in software development in the financial area with Computer Associates of Princeton and was a former editor at Applied Data Research in Princeton.

A lifetime area resident, he has lived in Princeton for eight years, currently on Mt. Lucas Road. Mr. Vonvorys is an outdoor and sports enthusiast who is committed to open space and environmental preservation.

"We are fortunate to have two such fine candidates on our local ticket this year," said Fred Porter, former Township police chief and former member of Township Committee who was chairman of the Republican candidate screening committee. "They will bring a fresh, new approach to our local government, which will be a welcome change to the business as usual from the one-party control which now exists."

Township Committee is currently comprised of four Democrats, Phyllis Marchand, Roslyn Denard, Ms. Tuck and Mr. Frakt, plus Carl Mayer, who was elected as an independent and has recently switched to the Democratic Party to run for Congress in the 12th District. After 11 years being in the minority in the 1970s and early 1980s, the Democrats gained the majority in 1987 with the election of Kate Litvack in 1987. She joined Mrs. Marchand and Janet Mitchell, who were elected on the Democratic ticket the previous year. The 1985 Committee was solidly Republican.

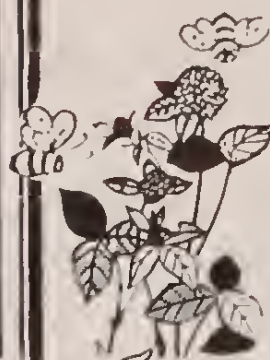

Republicans dominated again in the 1989 election when Dick Woodbridge gained a seat on Committee and Mrs. Mitchell was not elected to a second term. With the election of Ellen Souter and Mr. Porter in 1990, and Larry Glasberg in 1991, the Republicans continued to hold the majority until the 1992 election, when Mrs. Marchand was elected to a third term and her running mate, Sharon Bilanin, was also elected.

Colin Vonvorys

Seven Are Taken to Hospital in HazMat Scare At Westminster Choir College Student Center

Princeton Borough police traced to the accidental release of cleaning fluid into a heat exchange system on the roof of the student center.

Maintenance worker Ron Sexton reported that he had been using a diluted chemical cleaning solution to clean the hot and cold coils of the system. It was a process he had gone through in the past, he said, and had never caused fumes to be released into the building. The accident was still being investigated on Tuesday afternoon.

Six people were taken to the emergency room at the Medical Center at Princeton, and a seventh was transported to Helene Fuld Medical Center in Trenton. The victims were treated for a variety of complaints ranging from respiratory distress to high blood pressure. All were released after treatment.

The problem was tentatively traced to the accidental release of cleaning fluid into a heat exchange system on the roof of the student center.

Initially, HazMat workers were told that the liquid leaking into the system was a commercial cleaner called Acti-brite, composed of phosphoric acid and hydrofluoric acid. Later, more accurate information revealed that the liquid was actually a diluted solution of sodium hydroxide.

The different chemicals require different testing procedures, and caused a delay

According to Captain Peter J. Hanley of the Borough Police, the report of a woman "overcome by fumes" came in to the police dispatcher at 9:29 a.m. "Officer Carol Raymond answered the call," said Capt. Hanley. "She immediately recognized what was happening, and called for support from the fire and rescue services."

Officer Raymond and others began to evacuate the building immediately. Approximately 28 people, including the seven who were transported to the hospital, were removed to a nearby building, where they were assessed by the Princeton First Aid and Rescue Squad, and by other rescue workers on the scene.

The Student Center contains the dining commons, the book store, the office of the Dean of Students, classrooms, and other offices.

According to Anne Sears, Director of External Affairs for Westminster Choir College, the building was less crowded than usual. "There are not many people here right now," she said, reporting that 80 students are currently in Philadelphia rehearsing for a concert.

HazMat Team

Deputy Fire Chief Rick McKee, who was in charge at the scene, restricted access to the building and the area immediately surrounding it while a Hazardous Materials support team from West Windsor Township attempted to verify the nature of the fumes in the building.

in the ventilation and re-opening of the building.

According to Mr. McKee, only three people in the building complained of discomfort from the fumes right away. One of those was a 37-year-old Hopewell woman who is employed by the Choir College. An asthmatic, it was her acute discomfort that prompted the original call to the police.

A 21-year-old student complained that she too was feeling uncomfortable from the fumes and was also taken to the hospital. A third victim refused treatment.

Police reported that three additional victims were taken to the hospital shortly after 11 a.m. A 30-year-old man and a 28-year-old woman had both begun to complain of chest pains, and a 40-year-old man was experiencing difficulty breathing.

Later still, a 28-year-old woman complaining of a headache was transported to Princeton Medical Center. A 58-year-old woman suffering hyper-tension was taken to Helene Fuld because the Princeton Emergency Room was overcrowded.

Ready Response

Fire Police closed off part of Chestnut Street and Houghton Road during the evacuation and ventilation of the building Tuesday morning.

Responding to the scene were all three companies of the Princeton Fire Department, the Princeton First Aid and Rescue Squad, as well as a HazMat Support team and an Emergency Services Squad from West Windsor.

Ambulance crews from West Windsor, Pennington, Montgomery, and Rocky Hill were also present, as was the Borough Fire Marshall, Rider University's Fire Safety Officer (Westminster Choir College is a division of Rider University), and a representative of the DEPE.

Firefighters wearing oxygen tanks used large fans to ventilate the building, and it was re-opened by early afternoon.

Things were back to normal on the Choir College campus by afternoon, said Ms. Sears. The student center had reopened, and students and employees were about their business as usual.

"Things seem fine," said Ms. Sears. "People were calm, and there was no panic. We've heard that the people who were taken to the hospital are going to be fine."

"We served lunch in another building, and we seem to be back in business."

Reduced Increase In Borough Tax Rate Sought by Council

Borough Council at last week's Tuesday night meeting affirmed its intention to reduce the municipal tax rate increase from its currently projected 10 cents.

Although the 1996 municipal budget had been introduced with the 10 cent rate hike, Borough Administrator Thomas Shannon said he now saw a potential reduction to 7.5 cents. He told Council that there was more state aid available than he had originally believed, and that he was able to add $63,000 in aid to the revenue side.

In addition, said Mr. Shannon, he had followed the Finance Committee's recommendation and had added about $60,000 from reserve to the budget. He also informed Council that he had received verbal notice from the state that the Borough would be given $50,000 in discretionary aid.

A discussion of departmental budgets followed, with Council voting to tentatively adopt them as submitted subject to further adjustments and a full resolution of the tax rate. Councilman Roger Martindell voted against adoption.

The tentative Borough municipal budget is up nearly a million dollars over last year, from $14.1 million to $15 million. Nearly $600,000 of this will go toward operating expenses, including salaries and wages.

Parade Financing

A letter from Post 76 of the American Legion stating that it could no longer finance its share of Memorial Day Parade expenses was discussed at the meeting.

Several Council members expressed disappointment that this tradition of more than 70 years seemed likely to end. "Parades are fun. I hate to see tradition die," said Councilman Roger Martindell. "Perhaps a little contribution might make the wheels run this year."

another approximately $2,000. "This way, the two towns and the American Legion would split the costs 50-50," he said.

Council voted unanimously to support Mr. Freda's suggestion. Mayor Reed added that the Borough might also make an appeal for sponsors to try to help rescue the Memorial Day Parade.

At its meeting Monday night, Township Committee voted against Council's suggestion. Earlier this year, it had tabled a request from a group of Borough residents to permit July 4 fireworks at the high school football field. Several days later, said Committeeman Steven Frakt, Ray Wadsworth, a leader of the group, rescinded the request.

—Myrna K. Bearse

Last year, the Borough contributed $800 toward the parade and the Township gave $600. Both contributions were larger than usual because the 1995 parade cost $4,230, about $600 more than the previous year. This reflected the expansion of the event to honor the 50th anniversary of the end of World War II.

Councilman Mark Freda offered a suggestion that was approved by all members of Council. He said that the Borough and Township should each contribute $1,000 towards the parade, and should ask the Legion to raise

Leigh Avenue Man Arrested on Charge Of Sexual Assault

A Leigh Avenue man was arrested on Wednesday night, after a 17-year-old Hamilton girl leveled charges of sexual assault against him.

Township police arrested Keith Lader in his 20 Leigh Avenue home on Wednesday evening, approximately 24 hours after the alleged victim came forward.

Police reports stated that the girl and her father originally appeared at Borough Police headquarters, and were turned over to the Township when it was realized that the event had occurred in that jurisdiction.

The victim told police that she had gone to Mr. Lader's house voluntarily on Tuesday night. They were prior acquaintances, but reportedly had no romantic involvement.

The alleged assault occurred between 6 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. in Mr. Lader's house. The victim reported it to the police at 10 p.m.

Mr. Lader was charged with sexual assault and criminal sexual contact. The victim was not physically injured, and no weapon was used in the crime. Mr. Lader was held temporarily in the Mercer County Detention Center, but later posted bail.

Another case of criminal sexual contact, this one with no arrest resulting, occurred in the Borough this week. On Friday, a female Princeton University student living in 1937 Hall reported that she fell asleep at her desk while studying, and was awakened at 4:30 a.m. by the feeling that there was someone in the room with her.

She looked around just in time to see a white male wearing jeans and a white t-shirt running out of her room. She then realized that the blouse she was wearing had been unbuttoned.

She called the University's Department of Public Safety, but a search of the area failed to turn up a suspect. At the time she fell asleep, she told police, the door to her dorm room had been propped open.

Rampant Shoplifting

Borough police had to deal with a larger than usual number of teenage shoplifters last week, taking in five youths in three different incidents.

On Monday, officers were informed of a theft at a Nassau Street music store. They were informed that two 13-year-old boys were suspected of stealing some compact discs.

The two boys were picked up on University place, and on Friday, a female Princeton University student living in 1937 Hall reported that she fell asleep at her desk while studying, and was awakened at 4:30 a.m. by the feeling that there was someone in the room with her.

Both of the suspects are 13 years old and live in West Windsor. They were released to their families pending action by the juvenile officer.

Two teenage boys set off a theft alarm as they walked out of a Nassau Street record store at 12:20 p.m. on Saturday. They ran from the store, but were picked up a short distance away by a Borough patrol car.

The officer who made the stop recovered a cassette tape valued at $10. The boys, a 13-year-old from Franklin Park, and a 14-year-old from the Borough, were released to their parents pending action by the juvenile officer.

A 14-year-old Lawrence Township girl was charged with juvenile delinquency for shoplifting $9.90 worth of candy and make-up from a Nassau Street store.

The store manager caught her inside the store with a number of items stuffed in her pockets. She was handed over to her family, pending action by the juvenile officer.

Trespassing Arrests

Safety officers on the University campus after they discovered him near Mathey Hall at 2:30 a.m. on Friday.

In Mr. Burford's possession, police discovered a silver pipe with a black residue inside, believed to be used to smoke crack cocaine. They also discovered a number of food items that Mr. Burford is alleged to have shoplifted from Wawa.

Jerome McGowan, 48, of 144 John Street, was arrested on Wednesday at the YMCA. According to police reports, Mr. McGowan was present in the facility although his membership privileges had expired. He was asked to leave by staff members, but refused.

Police officers came to the scene to charge Mr. McGowan with defiant trespass. While the officers were attempting to handcuff Mr. McGowan, police said, he stiffened his arms in front of him and failed to cooperate. Because of that, he was additionally charged with resisting arrest.

A Princeton University student reported that a wallet and clothing were stolen from an unattended 1942 Hall dorm room between 12:30 p.m. and 1 p.m. on April 6.

The victim left her door unlocked and returned to find Brooks Brothers blazer valued at $130 and a wallet containing $15 in cash as well as credit cards and identification all missing.

An A-frame sign advertising a Spring Street business was stolen from the corner of Spring and Witherspoon Streets on Monday, between 7 p.m. and midnight.

The $200 sign had been left there by a store employee.

A student at Westminster Choir College reported a stolen purse on Friday. According to reports, the victim left the purse in a practice room in Dayton Hall between 11 a.m. and 1:30 p.m., and returned to find it missing.

The purse contained $40 in cash as well as credit cards, identification, etc.

An Alexander Street resident returned home from a brief vacation to find that his house had been burglarized.

According to police, the victim returned to the apartment at 8:45 a.m. on Monday after having been away from 2:30 p.m. on April 4. A door which he had locked on his departure was unlocked. Once in the house, he discovered that a Macintosh Powerbook laptop computer valued at $2,600 had been stolen.

Police investigating the burglary believe that the thief's point of entry was a bathroom window, which was found open.

Scavenger Hunt?

In an unusual act of criminal mischief, someone damaged a store awning on Hulfish Street. Police reported that the unknown actor pulled a bench to a point below the awning, climbed up, and used a sharp instrument to slice the store's logo out of the awning.

Police said that a one-foot by two-foot piece of the awning material was removed. The damage was done between 7:50 p.m. on Friday and 10 a.m. the next morning. There was no monetary estimate of the damage available.

Someone used a sharp instrument to scratch "Hi, mom" and an obscene word into the hood of a car on Friday.

The damaged car, a 1993 Nissan, was parked in a private lot in the 200 block of Nassau Street when the vandal struck. Police estimate the time of the crime as being between 12:15 a.m. and 10:30 a.m.

An Erdman Avenue resident told police that someone stole $84 worth of tools from his Ford van on March 31. The van was parked on the street near his residence between 1 p.m. and 5 p.m. said the victim.

Missing was a hack saw, a rivet gun, and a pair of tin snips.

Girl Hurt in Bike Mishap Recovering at Home

A 13-year-old Township girl who was taken by helicopter to Robert Wood Johnson University Hospital following a bicycle accident last week is at home and recovering well, said her father on Tuesday.

Julie van Zumbusch was injured Thursday afternoon when she was thrown over the handlebars of her bicycle on Poor Farm Road. Miss von Zumbusch suffered numerous cuts and abrasions to her face, arm, leg, and side in the fall, said her father.

Rescue workers called in the helicopter because they initially feared a serious head injury. "She was alert at first," said Richard von Zumbusch, "but apparently she became incoherent and did not understand where she was. They were concerned, and took the precaution to send her there."

Tests run by Miss von Zumbusch's doctors have given no reason to suggest that she suffered brain damage of any sort, said her father with obvious relief.

Mr. von Zumbusch, an architect and member of the Princeton Historic Preservation Commission, said that he is hopeful that his daughter will be able to return to school next week. "We're very happy," he said. "She is going to mend, and the cuts and bruises she has should heal without leaving scars."

Miss von Zumbusch was wearing a helmet at the time of the accident, which may have saved her from more serious injury.

Original reports stated that she was wearing "flip-flop" type sandals, and that one of those had caught in the spokes on one of the bicycle wheels, causing the accident. Mr. von Zumbusch said Tuesday that his daughter had, in fact, been wearing sandals with secure straps, and that he felt it more likely that the fall had been caused by a rock, pothole, or other obstruction in the roadway.

Gardener Finds "Grenade" In Chestnut Street Yard

There were a few hours of anxiety for residents of the Chestnut Street area on April 1, when a gardener raking a resident's lawn turned up what appeared to be ap

Police Captain Peter J. Hanley reported that the item was found at approximately 2 p.m., but that officers were not called to the scene until 10 p.m.

"Apparently it looked like what they used to call a 'pine-apple' grenade," he said Tuesday. "It was rusted and dirty. It looked like it had been exposed to the weather for some time." Officers cordoned off the area around the grenade, and contacted the state police bomb squad.

Borough police gave a description of the grenade to the bomb squad, and were told that it was probably a "dummy" used for training, and not a live explosive. They were urged to keep civilians out of the immediate area anyway, until the bomb squad arrived.

According to Captain Hanley, the bomb squad arrived at 12:20 a.m., and after a brief examination determined that the grenade was not dangerous and removed it from the yard.

Police have no clues as to the origin of the dummy grenade or as to how long it had been in the yard.

Amendments to Budget, Adoption of Ordinances, And Discussion of Staffing Occupy Committee

Township Committee dealt with a wide variety of topics on Monday night, ranging from making amendments to its 1996 municipal budget, adopting four ordinances and discussing whether or not to add several new positions to the Township staff.

The amendments to the 1996 budget total some $53,564, but they do not change the tax rate increase, which is two cents, based on the old assessments. This is because they include increases as well as decreases in revenues and some adjustments in use of debt service reserves. One of the increases in revenue is $13,572 that the Township received from the state Department of Transportation for pothole repair. Another is payment from Princeton Community Village of $9,442 in lieu of taxes.

There were also decreases in appropriations, including a net reduction of $30,336 from the joint agency meetings and a reduction of $5,379 in the affordable housing contribution. Committee will hold a public hearing on the budget amendments on Monday, April 22.

Toppling the list of ordinances that were adopted was the bond ordinance putting in place the financing arrangements for acquisition of the Poe tract should Committee decide it will go ahead and purchase the 51 acres that is part of Woodfield Reservation. By agreement with the late Lydia Poe, the public has been using these 51 acres for some 32 years as if they were owned by the Township, but in fact they are not. The agreement stipulated that on the death of Mrs. Poe the Township would have right of first refusal to purchase the land and set the purchase price at the value established for estate tax purposes.

According to Township Attorney Edwin W. Schmler, the value has now been set at $886,000. The Township has received offers from Tenacre Foundation, the Friends of Princeton Open Space and the J. Seward Johnson Sr. Charitable Trust totalling $135,000, leaving a net cost of $751,000. The Green Acres program has promised a grant of 25 percent of the $886,000, or $221,000, further reducing the net cost to $530,000.

Committee approved a bond ordinance authorizing the issuance of $900,000 in bonds and notes to meet the purchase price and various costs associated with the closing. However, approving the bond ordinance does not commit the Township to the purchase. Committee has until May 28 to decide whether or not it will exercise the option.

Several members of the Friends of Princeton Open Space were on hand Monday night to urge Committee to acquire the property.

New Sewer Rate

Another ordinance adopted Monday set the 1996 sewer rate at $5.50, up from $5.40 the previous year. Still another appropriates $20,000 for the construction of an additional shelter in Community Park South to be used by the Recreation Department for its summer day camp. The fourth ordinance transfers responsibility for inspecting elevators in Township buildings to the State Department of Community Affairs.

In other business, Committee rejected two bids for the purchase of a dump truck because they were too high. It also rejected five bids for the improvement of Franklin Avenue because the additional provisions have to be included in the bid specifications for the Township to be assured of receiving $145,000 in grant reimbursements for the project. The Township was notified of these additional provisions before the bids were received.

Committee also presented plaques to Peter Root, Daniel Tomalin and Jose "Danny" Flores, all of Engine Company No. 1 for heroism in the rescue of Geraldine Lockheart from the bedroom of her burning home in mid-March.

A professional services agreement in the amount of $28,700 was approved for environmental consultants to do work required by the State Department of Environmental Protection in connection with the removal of three underground fuel storage tanks at the Public Works Garage.

When the tanks were removed it was discovered that they had been leaking fuel into ground water in amounts that are above the state guidelines. This requires remedial action and a plan that must be submitted to the NJDEP by July 5. The scope of work includes additional soil probes, the installation of a ground water monitoring well, ground water sampling and testing, and analysis of both soil and water.

Alcohol & Drug Testing

Finally, Committee approved a resolution implementing a program of alcohol and drug testing for all Township employees who operate a commercial vehicle for the Township and also hold commercial driver's licenses. Requirements for alcohol and drug testing were set forth in a 1991 federal Omnibus Transportation Employee Testing Act, which is gradually being implemented. In 1995, municipalities with more than 100 employees were required to implement a drug and alcohol testing program. This year it applies to municipalities with 50 or fewer employees.

According to Susan Stanbury, assistant administrator, by the end of the year, when additional members of the Public Works Department have received their commercial driver licenses, there will be 15 Township employees who will be subject to testing for drugs and alcohol at work. They include drivers of dump trucks and heavy equipment, she said.

The Township may also require random testing of any employee who is suspected of drug or alcohol use or possession during work.

Committee spent a great deal of time in work session discussing what contribution, if any, it would make to the Memorial Day Parade. The members had in hand copies of a letter from Henry J. Frank, acting as secretary of the American Legion Post 76, which has annually made the arrangements for the parade. This letter said that the American Legion could no longer undertake the parade because of an inability to raise the necessary funds.

Committee also had a memo from Borough Councilman Mark Freda advising them that Borough Council was willing to put up $1,000 for the parade if the Township would match it and if the American Legion would reconsider and agree to put on the parade again this year. Mr. Frank told Committee he could not answer for the Legion whether or not it would go ahead.

This led Committeeman Steven Frakt to say that without a specific request from the American Legion, Committee could not act. Committeewoman Phyllis Marchand said she thought the parade ought to be held on Memorial Day and not on the Friday evening of the Memorial Day weekend. Mr. Frank said that that was the custom for 40 years until Vietnam protestors disrupted the parade in 1969. He said people seemed to like the Friday night parade.

It was pointed out that the number of bands had risen from one to three and last year to four. Mr. Frank described how the Township reduced its contribution to the parade from $450 to $400 in 1994. Last year, because it was the anniversary of the end of World War II, Committee raised the contribution to $600 but advised the Legion that it would not keep it at this level in the future. The Borough, meanwhile, doubled its contribution from $400 to $800 in 1995.

Mr. Frakt offered a motion that would set aside $400 if the parade did indeed take place. From the audience Harry Cooke told Committee he was "really appalled" that it would spend so much time talking about such a "miniscule" amount as $1,000. Before there was a second to Mr. Frakt's motion, Carl Mayer offered one of his own: that Committee authorize $1,000 to signal Committee's desire that the parade take place. Mayor Michele Tuck seconded the motion, but it was defeated three to two, with only the maker and second voting in the affirmative.

Committee also spent a lot of time discussing several new positions that had been requested on the Township staff. They included a part-time custodian handyman, a full-time escrow account coordinator who would also do records management and fixed asset accounting; part-time clerical help for the Zoning Department and Historic Preservation Department; and two new truck drivers.

Cogent reasons were put forth for each position but in the end Committee agreed to only three: the accounting clerk, the clerical help in the Zoning and Historic Preservation Departments, and one truck driver, for a total of $57,880 this year. Roz Denard suggested hiring a handy man on an "as needed" basis, in place of calling in licensed electricians and plumbers as the Township has been doing to take care of things that need fixing in the municipal buildings. It was also suggested that a prices be obtained from cleaning services that might come in and do a thorough cleaning of the carpets and windows.

Princeton U. Impostor
James Hogue
Sentenced by Judge

James Hogue, the man who bilked Princeton University out of tens of thousands of dollars in financial aid by enrolling under a false identity in 1989, was sentenced in Borough Court for defiant trespassing on Monday.

The 36-year-old Mr. Hogue was fined $200 and given a 30-day sentence by Judge Russell W. Annich Jr., after he was found posing as a student again. Mr. Hogue was arrested in February after he was discovered pretending to be a second-year graduate student at the University.

Having been declared persona non grata by the University following his first arrest there in 1991, he was committing defiant trespass simply by setting foot on the campus. Mr. Hogue had not enrolled as a student this time.

Although he has already served more than the allotted 30 days, Mr. Hogue is still in jail. He is currently awaiting a hearing on parole violations, which could net him significantly more jail time.

Two New Computer Centers at Public Library Will Offer Patrons Access to Internet

Without building a new addition, without moving, and without displacing its employees, the Princeton Public Library will vastly expand its offerings on Tuesday, April 16.

In a 2 p.m. ceremony, the Library staff will unveil two new computer centers, offering access to, among other things, the vast resources of the Internet. The opening is scheduled to coincide with "Log on @ the Library Day," part of the American Library Association's National Library Week.

The Jacqueline Dolph Coogan Memorial Center, to be located near the Reference Area, will boast a dozen computer stations, four of which will have high-speed access to the Internet.

The Charles M. Jones Computer Center for Children will be located in the children's section of the Library, and will be made up of four computers, one dedicated to CD ROM-based programs and reference materials, and three with access to the Internet.

In a March 28 press release, Library Director Jacquelyn Thresher envisioned a future in which "literacy" is "no longer defined as simply the ability to read or write; it must include a range of technology-based skills."

The library, she writes, "must serve as a safety net to ensure universal access to electronic information. Individuals unable to access or effectively use electronic information will be increasingly disadvantaged." As a result, she wrote, they will become citizens of "second-class status."

As part of the festivities on Tuesday, those attending will have the opportunity to sign an "Equity Petition." The document will request that local, state, and federal legislators "protect public access to information by investing in libraries."

"If we don't act now," writes Ms. Thresher, "the information superhighway may become a toll road available only to those who can afford it. Librarians want all Americans to have access to the information they want and need in the 21st century."

Coogan and Jones Centers

Mr. Greenfeldt said Friday that the money donated by Ms. Coogan, who died on January 15 of this year, had gone to purchase 10 Pentium-based Gateway 2000 computers. Those 10 computers will make up the bulk of the 12-computer center in the Reference Area.

In all, 11 Gateway 2000 computers and one Macintosh will be in the Coogan Center. ("We wanted to provide at least one Macintosh machine for adult use," says Mr. Greenfeldt. "It will allow people who have a Macintosh at home to download from the Internet for use at home.")

Eight of those machines are already present in the Reference Area, allowing access to such searchable databases as the Dow Jones News Retrieval Service, National Newspaper Abstracts, the Princeton Newspaper Index, the New York Times, Encarta Multimedia Encyclopedia, the Oxford English Dictionary, and many others.

The Library will be closed on Thursday, while the computers are removed from the tables they currently sit on, and a new set of computer work stations, similar to study carrels, is installed. The Coogan Center will have eight stations in a double-row of four per side to hold the database machines. Another set of four stations will hold the machines with Internet access.

An additional five work stations, with power outlets but no computers, will be installed near the card catalog files. These, says Mr. Greenfeldt, will allow patrons who bring portable computers to the library to plug them in, rather than run them from batteries. If more funds become available, he said, additional computers might be added to the five stations.

Named for a long-serving Princeton Public Library volunteer, the Charles M. Jones Computer Center for Children is funded by donations from Mr. Jones' family, and by many other gifts made in his memory.

The Jones Center will hold three Macintosh computers with Internet access, and a Gateway 2000 dedicated to CD ROM materials. In addition, two more stations will house an audio/visual area, complete with CD player and TV/VCR, allowing children on-site access to the Library's large selection of a/v materials.

The library's access to the Internet is provided free of charge by the Princeton-based Global Enterprise Services (formerly Princeton University's John van Neumann Center, but now a private company). Without the donation of access, use of the Internet at the two new centers might be an impossibility. Mr. Greenfeldt estimates that if the library were to buy the services at the going rate, it would cost more than $30,000 per year.

Internet Offerings

Various members of the staff are putting final touches on a Princeton Public Library "home page" for the World Wide Web, and are creating links to sites around the world that they feel will be both interesting and convenient for library patrons.

The links will not limit patrons to sites chosen by the library staff, says Mr. Greenfeldt, but it is his hope that they will make use of the machines easier and more efficient than it might otherwise be.

"We know that we will have a tremendous demand for access to a limited number of machines," he says, implying that streamlining the process by which patrons find the information they need will be a priority.

According to Terri Nelson, the library's "webmaster", users signing on to the library's home page will be presented with several immediate options. One link will provide basic information about the library itself, including hours, circulation information, and future projects.

The four main areas, she says, are labeled General Interest Resources, Local Internet Resources, "Kidsnet", and How to Get Help.

The General Interest area will provide a classified menu of links to Internet resources around the world. The Local Interest area will be specific to New Jersey, providing links to government, business, news, entertainment, education and other resources for both the Princeton area and statewide.

The Kidsnet area, says Ms. Nelson, is "pretty extensive." Currently subdivided into purely recreational resources, and "homework" resources, the area features scores of links — many accessible in several languages. "We've tried, where we can, to emphasize the global nature of [the Internet]," says Ms. Nelson.

The How to Get Help section offers on-line tutorials, beginners' resources, help in creating a personal home page, and various search engines.

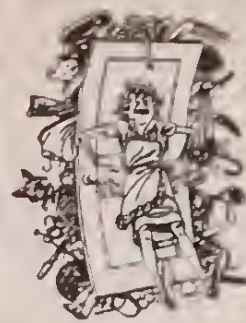

The library will not be able to offer its patrons access to Usenet news groups, or to electronic mail.

After Lengthy Debate, Internet Use Policy Adopted by Princeton Public Library Board

With the plans for two new computer centers with Internet access in the works for the past several months, the Board of Trustees of the Princeton Public Library has spent a lot of time and a lot of mental energy on the development of an Internet Use Policy.

Weeks of debate resulted in the three-page statement that will be available to library patrons interested in using the Internet.

The policy asserts, first of all, that access to the Internet is available to "any and all" users of the library as an "information and educational resource." Citing the American Library Association's "Library Bill of Rights in Cyberspace," it also confirms that the library will not "deny or limit access to information available via electronic resources because of its controversial content or because of personal beliefs or fear of confrontation."

Specific sections of the policy deal with "Child Safety on the Internet," "User Responsibilities," "Compliance with Library Policy and Guidelines," and "Staff Assistance."

Librarians are typically among the country's most vociferous defenders of First Amendment rights, and its greatest opponents of censorship. Internet connections in libraries, however, can be seen as a test of that commitment.

It is easy for a librarian to advocate unlimited access to the materials in a library when he or she knows what and where those materials are. Collection development policies and selection criteria ensure that librarians are in control of the materials that make it into the stacks. Librarians can also arrange materials in such a way that books meant for a mature audience are not shelved next to the Nancy Drew series.

But the information available on the Internet, both images and text, is subject to no filtering process. A small percentage of that information is likely to be offensive to many viewers, and a large percentage is presented with no guarantee as to its accuracy.

"This is different," said Library Director Jacquelyn Thresher in a February interview. "This opens us up to having things come into the library that are outside our collections criteria — things that we would never purchase in print form."

In addition, the information on the Internet is not reliably divided into "adult" and children's" sections. NASA and the Discovery Channel have World Wide Web sites that are of immeasurable interest and value to children; but neo-nazi hate groups are on the Web too.

The objectionable sites are not something a child is likely to stumble across, but the fact that they exist and are accessible at all is a great concern to many.

Rules, Cautions, Disclaimers

The library policy, which was accepted by the Trustees in late March, is a collection of rules, cautions, and disclaimers arrived at after much soul-searching on the part of the library staff.

Ms. Thresher described its development as a "deliberative and time-consuming process." Through research and discussion, she said, the library staff tried "to bring ourselves to the point where, even if we don't have all the answers, we are confident that we have looked at all of the questions."

The library staff researched the possibility of installing one of many commercial Internet "filter" programs on the library system, but found most to be expensive, labor-intensive, and arbitrary.

The policy does not expressly prohibit a patron, child or adult, from accessing particular Internet sites. It specifically states that the library staff is not able to supervise patrons using the Internet.

In a section entitled "Child Safety on the Internet," the policy asserts that "Parents or guardians are responsible for the Internet information selected and/or accessed by their children." It goes on to encourage parents to discuss Internet use with their children and offers a pamphlet "Child Safety on the Information Superhighway," published by the National Center for Missing and Exploited Children, as a guide.

The policy also states that the library reserves the right to require a patron using the Internet to remove an image or piece of text from the screen if it is causing "a disruption." The four computers in the children's section are strategically placed so that the screens are all within view of the librarian's desk.

3 Township Candidates Vie for 2 School Board Seats

This Tuesday, April 16, Township voters will be asked to select two candidates from among three who are seeking election as Township members of the School Board.

The three are Michael Littman, the only incumbent; Merrill Price Blancosino, and Gina Kolata. The two candidates for the one Borough seat, Ricardo Bruce and Frederick R. Brodzinski, were interviewed in last week's TOWN TOPICS.

Every Princeton citizen registered to vote will have the opportunity to decide whether to approve the 1996-97 school budget. The budget totals $33.4 million, an increase of $1.2 million over last year. Voters will be asked on April 16 to approve the amount of $27.4 million to be raised through the Borough and Township school tax. Polls will be open from 4 to 9 p.m.

If the budget passes, Borough property owners will see a 4 cent increase in their school tax rate, from $2.04 per $100 of assessed valuation to $2.08. The increase would be ten cents in the Township, from $2.27 to $2.37.

The election is taking place in a climate of controversy at the schools. Teachers have lobbied against Superintendent of Schools Marla Bossart, whose contract is up for renewal on Tuesday night, April 9. At the same time, Dr. Bossart is believed to have told High School Principal Leigh Byron that his contract will not be renewed, a decision that was followed by a student rally at the high school in support of the principal.

These conflicts have surfaced at School Board meetings. At one recent meeting, parents expressed anger that the Board's invoking of policy stopped them from speaking out in support of Dr. Byron.

The winners in the April 16 election will be sworn into office at the April 23 School Board meeting. The two Board members who chose not to seek re-election, and whose last official Board meeting will be April 9, are Candace Preston, Borough; and Chiara Nappi, Township.

A realtor with Fox and Lazo, Ms. Blancosino currently has six children in the public schools. A resident of Grover Avenue, she holds a bachelor's degree from Stanford University and a master's degree from the Bank Street College of Education.

She has lived in Princeton 13 years and is making her fourth try for a seat on the School Board.

Merrill Price Blancosino

"We need new members on the Board," said Ms. Blancosino. "The School Board's relations with the community are not really good."

She said she feels the district needs a responsible and responsive administration that could motivate people to achieve. "A lot of people are at odds with each other right now."

The district would stand to gain considerably, she believes, if it had leadership from the top down. Specifically, she cites the need to restore academic programs that have been cut, and the need for the Board to have a code of ethics that values the concerns of parents, teachers, taxpayers and students.

Ms. Blancosino also wants to see accountability to prevent the loss of funds due to administrative errors, and dignity and democracy in the school district. "The press is having a field day with the nonsense going on in the school district," she said.

Given the perpetual and increasing funding restraints on the district, Ms. Blancosino said the School Board has to look very carefully at everything that is being done. But,

The public is invited to a Princeton Regional School Board Candidate Forum on Wednesday, April 10, from 7:30 to 9 p.m. at John Witherspoon Middle School, 217 Walnut Lane.

All five candidates have been invited to discuss their priorities and to answer questions from the public. They are, Michael Littman, Merrill Blancosino, and Gina Kolata, who are running for two Township seats; and Frederick Brodzinski and Ricardo Bruce, candidates for one Borough seat.

The Parent Teacher Organization (PTO) Council of Princeton Regional Schools and the Princeton Area League of Women Voters are sponsors.

These Princeton residents who care about our children's future ask you to come out in force to elect Michael Littman to the Princeton Regional School Board.

School Board

she added, this should not lead to cutting in important areas. "We need people on the Board who are more open-minded about the areas that need improvement and who know how these areas could be made better."

She believes the burgeoning conflicts among the various factions in the school district could be lessened if people were allowed to express their opinions, and if their opinions were listened to. "Just that kind of a change would make a big difference," she said. "I feel a lot of students believe their opinion doesn't matter."

Looking toward the future and the increase in school expenditures it will inevitably bring, Ms. Biancosino called for the Board to look very closely at administrative costs. She feels that even more could be done than the downward adjustments that were made in the Valley Road administration budgets this year. Money, she states, should be directed at programs and students.

A heterogenous district such as Princeton's requires that the school district listen to concerns of all the different groups and act accordingly, Ms. Biancosino said. She was pleased that some minority students received a grant on their own that will be used to lessen tensions between groups, and she pointed out that tensions exist not only in the schools.

Ms. Biancosino believes that diversity is an asset in terms of educating people to the value of others. "It should be used as much as possible."

Ways of doing this could include drawing in parents and other community members through the art program, she said. "I think the schools are reaching out to parents from other countries and helping them become more involved. This helps students with their self-esteem."

The holder of bachelor's and master's degrees from the University of Maryland, Gina Kolata notes that she has had an almost exclusively public school education. She is a reporter on science and medicine for the New York Times, has lived in Princeton for five years, and has two children in the high school.

Gina Kolata

Ms. Kolata is running for the School Board at the urging of her children, she said. "They would like me to solve all the little problems and be a booster. There are little problems, but I think public schools are a community resource."

Her job as a reporter requires that she listen to people, and she believes this skill will help her solve some of the School Board's problems.

The Hun Road resident said she was not aligned with any faction on the School Board. "What I'd like to stress is the need to have an overriding philosophy stressing academic excellence for all our children," she said.

The School Board role is not to micromanage schools, she asserted. "It is clear we might be able to get more done if we didn't fight over minutiae all the time. The Board has not been functioning very well. I feel people dig in their heels and don't listen to each other."

The high school, she believes, is getting an undeserved bad reputation. While it is being perceived as a place where people brandish weapons and sell drugs, she points out that about half the senior class is taking calculus, with more female students than males taking it. "It's a harder class than my husband taught at the University of Pennsylvania," she said.

"We have to put things into perspective," said Ms. Kolata. "We lose the whole sense of being a cohesive group when people feel they have to put their kids in private schools."

She agrees that there is a problem with minority achievement in the schools, and believes this could be addressed by making certain there is a minimum standard of education for everyone.

Looking at the conflicts in the district and on the School

Board, Ms. Kolata believes she could bring an open mind to their resolution. She said she thinks she knows some of the difficulties, but that people not on the Board cannot fully know the problems or solve them from the outside.

The candidate sees several possible ways of saving money in the future. One is having teachers provide an extra 45 minutes of student contact time each day. "Some districts require six hours," she said. "I don't know if this is feasible."

Ms. Kolata also noted that Princeton has more child study teams than other districts, and said that it is necessary to seek the best ways to allocate resources. She also pointed out that studies have shown that more money doesn't bring better schools.

"Being heterogenous is one of our great strengths," said Ms. Kolata. "We have to make sure every child can get the education we provide without going to outside services."

She said she believes that the schools can't solve social problems, but that they should try to erase as many inequalities as they can.

Michael Littman, the only incumbent on the slate, is seeking his second term on the School Board. A graduate of Brandeis University, with a Ph.D. from M.I.T., he is associate professor of mechanical and aerospace engineering at Princeton University. He is a six-year resident of Princeton, with two children at Riverside School.

Mr. Littman said he made his first run for the School Board three years ago because he was concerned about programmatic offerings and because he felt the school district was not as well run as it could be. These concerns are still valid today, he said, as is the issue of class size.

An important concept today is leveraging human and financial resources, said the Riverside Drive resident. "We have to plan in advance for multiple benefits from every action."

He believes, for example, that trailers will soon be needed because the schools will run out of space for students. Rather than placing a classroom in a trailer, Mr. Littman would like to put computer clusters in them. He would then be interested in exploring with the Public Library ways to have these computers made available to the general public.

He feels people can be brought together by getting everyone to talk with each other. As an example, Mr. Littman notes that the group attempting to set technology policy had a wide range of views on the use of computers in the schools. "By getting everyone to talk with each other we came out with something middle ground and brought calm to the situation," he said.

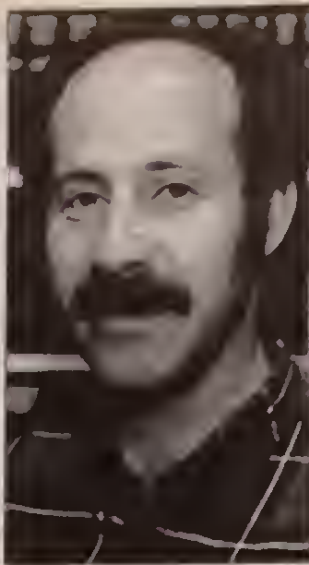

Future cost savings might be obtained from continued attention to the area of benefits, insurance, and contracted services, said Mr. Littman. "This is an ongoing process by which we examine all financial expenditures of the district and look for economies."

He also wants the schools to explore the possibility of promoting from within. "The last seven senior administration positions were filled by people from outside the district," he said. "When we do this we miss the opportunity to move more experienced people into higher positions and replace them with less expensive people. This is also a way to reward our own staff."

Making structural changes in the district can help students to achieve, he said. He learned, for example, that many minority students are not taking foreign language. "One way to stop this is not to allow students to opt out." He is also favorable to the idea of making instrumental music a requirement from grade three on.

Choice, Mr. Littman said, is important for self-determination. "I want to eliminate the choice of not participating. The trick is, as you add structure to some options, you can't take away all freedoms."

Borough School Board Candidate Has Five Top Priorities for Future

To the Editor of Town Topics:

If elected to the Princeton Regional School Board my top five priorities would be as follows:

1. To focus teachers, students, and administrators on improving the quality of the educational programs through the use of Total Quality Management/Continuous Improvement Techniques. Those techniques such as benchmarking, assessment, work teams, empowerment, and process mapping, should enable the district to operate in a more effective and efficient manner.

2. To establish curriculum standards that would ensure a world class education for all students by the year 2000. Coursework and support services should be geared to a standard that is competitive with children studying in Japan, Germany, and Australia as well as the best districts in the United States.

3. To challenge teachers, and administrators to increase the excitement of the learning process, to challenge old paradigms and to seek new and creative ways to teach numeracy, literacy, and communication. I want our educators to be risk takers and our children to be capable of self-directed learning. I want us to move forward as an educational organization.

4. To maintain, and strengthen our valuable extracurricular programs such as music, arts, sports, and drama. I believe these programs complement and enhance the formal curriculum. They enable students to learn life skills and to have the opportunity to assume leadership roles. The experience of working as a member of a group is invaluable and should be encouraged. These activities also offer our children the opportunity to learn organizational and interpersonal skills.

5. To carefully review and evaluate how we allocate our financial resources to maximize their effectiveness. To explore new ways of finding programs and equipment through corporate sponsorship and foundation support. I will aggressively seek assistance from foundations and charitable trusts. I will always remember who pays the bills of the school district.

I hope you will give me the chance to serve on the school board. I believe I can help change the course of the district and improve the future of our schools.

Township Incumbent on School Board Reveals Themes and Ideas He Follows

To the Editor of Town Topics:

Below are themes and ideas that I have followed and will continue to follow as a member of the Princeton Regional Board of Education.

All of our students should receive a high quality education.

The schools are our community's most valuable asset.

Our community values small class size and small neighborhood schools.

Planning is a virtue.

Academic instruction in the basics and personal motivation are keys to success.

Students should be involved in decisions that affect them.

Decisions should be based on information, analysis, principles, and vision.

We should build on our strengths.

The community values art, music, and athletics.

Princeton cares about the community as a whole, and its residents as individuals.

The public has a right to information about the district and its future.

The public must be heard and must be involved in decision making.

The cost of education should be affordable to the taxpayer.

Taxpayer concerns should be respected.

The schools must be a safe place for learning.

Reasons for rules should be stated.

Rules should be fair, easy to understand and remember, and followed.

We should not be afraid to reveal our mistakes and learn from them.

Comparison with similar districts is useful.

Evaluations are essential as a check on our strengths and our weaknesses.

We should look for solutions that minimize disruption and maximize growth.

We must seek out and eliminate waste.

We should be open to new ideas and constructive suggestions.

Day to day operations are the job of the Administration.

Planning from year to year and beyond is the job of the Board.

We should work cooperatively with the municipalities.

Don't forget to vote.

Students and Teachers in Best Position To Assess Abilities of Their Principal

To the Editor of Town Topics:

There is something profoundly cynical about the way the fate of Princeton High School Principal, Leigh Byron, is being decided.

In one of the finest schools in the nation the message appears to be that those who teach and those who learn are not able to assess the abilities of those who lead them. Dr. Bossert and the Princeton Regional School Board, if it concurs with her, are putting themselves in the precarious position of the removed, powerful prevailing over the local, less powerful. It is a situation that can have no good end.

The students of Princeton High School have sounded a wake-up call and taught us all a lesson about citizenship and the voice of the people. The school board should reject the Superintendent's recommendation and give Dr. Byron at least another year to prove himself.

Littman Endorsed for Township Seat On Princeton Regional School Board

To the Editor of Town Topics:

I write to endorse the candidacy of Michael Littman for re-election to a Township seat on the Princeton Regional School Board. This election will be critical in shaping the direction of the district for years to come and I believe Michael's skills and record of achievement on the Board in his first term merit a strong vote of support.

Michael has provided leadership in areas of great challenge to the district, such as technology and minority achievement, while maintaining a strong commitment to community involvement and adherence to the letter and spirit of the Open Meetings ("Sunshine") Law. Michael also understands the proper role of Board members in making policy. In his role as chair of our Policy Committee, he has led us to a clarification of many complex policy issues even while assuring the input of the community. Michael also understands that Board members have an important role in oversight of the financial and administrative conduct of the district.

He is not a "yes man," he always does his homework, and he never fails to ask crucial questions in the debate. There is no more informed member of the Board, no one who respects and honors the positive aspects of diversity in our community, and no one more committed to an honest and open debate on the future of our schools than Michael Littman. I strongly urge you to support him with your vote on April 16th.

Candidate Says, Above All We Must Care About Effects of Policies on Each Child

To the Editor of Town Topics:

I am a person of few words. As many already know, I'm running for the Borough seat on the Princeton Regional school board — and some are probably asking, how can such a quiet person make a difference? The irony is I don't have a long list of specific answers to the problems we face, nor should I. Since I started campaigning, I've been learning from parents all across town how they feel about their children's education, and how they feel about the system as it has responded to them. And the more I learn, the more I feel I need to know.

I can't promise anyone that I will be able to fix everything that is wrong. But I can say that because I don't have all the answers, I am ready to listen, and I have come to a conclusion, which is that we lack a core value everyone should be able to count on. This is a simple value, so fundamental, it is somewhat embarrassing to state: we must, above all else, care about the effects of our programs and policies as they take root with each child in our schools.

We are not statistics here, we are real people who do and do not profit from real actions. As a parent, I have not looked for people with rigid plans, I have looked for people with ears and hearts and minds.

We are not a large district. We can afford to care meaningfully and effectively for every child. Let's take this challenge together and pursue it diligently and patiently.

I urge everyone to vote on April 16th.

Shame on Borough Council For Nixing Flags & Fireworks

To the Editor of Town Topics:

I'm very disappointed to read that the American flags will not fly in Princeton all summer. Why not? Hopewell has them up all summer and they look grand.

They're festive and decorative and symbolic of peace and order — the kind of world we all want and strive for ... and the fireworks!? Why not? Council, you're letting insurance companies rule our lives and not your own good judgment and sense of fun.

For shame. Let us have flags and fireworks!

Dr. Brodzinski Would Contribute Sanity To Current School Board Situation

To the Editor of Town Topics:

Service on the Board of Education of Princeton Regional Schools is certainly a hard and thankless job. I am therefore grateful to all the candidates who are running for a board seat. In particular, I would like to express my support for the Borough candidate Fred Brodzinski.

Dr. Brodzinski is a very competent and qualified candidate. First of all, I am impressed with his extensive experience in education. He has been a teacher for many years, an administrator for 26 years (he is currently employed at City College), and has extensive training in management techniques, a subject that he also teaches.

Dr. Brodzinski's strong and varied background will allow him to appreciate how the Princeton Schools work and to contribute to their improvement. As a father of students in the school, he certainly has a strong interest in putting his expertise at the service of the Princeton Regional School system.

I appreciate Dr. Brodzinski's terse vision on what the role of the board should be. He believes that the primary job of the board is to set goals and policies and hire competent professionals to carry them out. He believes that the board should not micro-manage and interfere with administrators in running the school. I feel that such a sound viewpoint would add sanity to the current situation in the district.

While Dr. Brodzinski is very interested in improving the quality of the academic program, he also has a well-rounded vision of what it means to educate children and of which different components it requires. So he heartily supports arts and sports in our schools.

Finally, he understands the need to control expenditures in the current harsh economic climate. As an administrator, he has vast familiarity with the financial aspect of running an organization.

We are very fortunate having such a strong candidate interested in serving on our board. He certainly deserves our strong support.

School Board Candidate Will Work to Restore Morale of Students, Teachers, Administrators

To the Editor of Town Topics:

I have lived in Princeton since 1984 and have experienced the schools from kindergarten through 12th grade through my children. Like many others, I chose to live in Princeton largely because of the schools. I have had experience personally with both public and private schools, as a student, a teacher, and a parent, and I find the Princeton schools to be of the highest caliber, offering a commendably diverse curriculum.

The reputation of the Princeton schools for excellence is known nationally and is verified annually in quantifiable ways by consistently high test scores and by the accomplishments of our graduates, and also in the less easily measured achievements of exceptional creative production by students on athletic and academic teams, in artwork and creative writing and in music and drama performance.

Yet we are currently suffering from low morale among students, teachers, parents, and administrators which threatens the reputation of the district and the actual performance of our students. We need new and positive leadership from the school board.

As a member of the Princeton Regional Board of Education, I will promote leadership through responsible and responsive administration, through an emphasis on excellence in programs, through a code of ethics in dealing with the concerns of parents, students, teachers, and taxpayers, through accountability at all levels in order to ensure that we retain, restore, and expand programs rather than cutting them, and by maintaining the dignity of the district through sensitive, democratic processes at board meetings. Everyone in the community should have pride in our schools.

No Hospital in NJ Cleaner or Better Run or Staffed Than Our Medical Center

To The Editor of Town Topics:

In your last issue, you published an excellent letter by Beverly Leach in support of the positive contribution that the Medical Center of Princeton makes to our community.

The vast majority of us agree with her, and perhaps should be more vocal in our support of this fine medical facility.

In the course of business, I've been in almost every hospital in New Jersey. In my opinion, there is not one that is cleaner, more efficiently run, or staffed by people who are more competent or caring.

A continuing negative focus on any institution will pinpoint mistakes and areas that can be improved. No entity run by human beings can, by definition, be perfect.

However, we could all stand to follow the lead of Beverly Leach and support a fine resource; ready to help us at times when we will all have a compelling need for their help.

The Princeton Regional Schools.

Leadership through a responsible and responsive administration that has a real vision but also demonstrates the ability to motivate people toward achieving vision is necessary. As keepers of the lighthouse school district, we must rekindle the beacon of excellence.

Excellence must be restored at all levels. We must restore academic programs for all students (and let us not forget those at the top) in the areas of math, science, foreign language, humanities, and the arts. The Board needs to follow a code of ethics which prevents the undermining of parent and teacher concerns. We must listen to parent, teacher, taxpayer, and student concerns. Let's remember that the parents and community as taxpayers own our schools!

Accountability at every level is a necessity. It is not acceptable to forfeit a full year's use of half a million dollars of state aid due to missed filing dates and bloated administrative costs, or to lose nearly one hundred thousand dollars of desegregation money. Action must be taken to prevent any further erosion of support for our athletic programs which have always been inclusive and have helped our students.

Dignity must be restored not only in the schools but in the press. Real estate values must not suffer any more from the mudslinging and negative press that is being fueled by the insensitive, inflexible, and undemocratic attitudes that are prevalent at current board meetings.

I, Merrill Price Biancosino, firmly believe that teaching salaries should be kept in check during times of economic downturn which we are in now. However, it is important to realize that there are other acceptable ways in which we can support our teachers and staff — with support for programs, new ideas, control of class size, proper funding for classroom supplies, and teacher involvement in curriculum development.

Strong Public Schools "Community Treasures" Township School Board Candidate Argues

To: Editor of Town Topics:

A friend of mine has been looking at private schools for her children. "They don't have the, um, problems, that the public schools have," she said. Another friend assured me that I could leave my bicycle unlocked and unattended in the front of a local private school. "It's a whole different culture than the public schools," she said.

I think most of us understand the subtext here. Princeton's public schools, and the high school in particular, are getting a bad reputation, being seen as places where students brandish weapons, drugs are openly bought, sold, and used, and where teachers tremble to walk the halls.

And, yes, if you walk into Princeton High School, you might get the feeling that something is amiss. A new administrative policy has required that teachers' hall monitor patrols be doubled. As a consequence, computer labs, that must be supervised by teachers, often are locked and unattended. The rest rooms consistently lack soap, toilet paper, and paper towels, giving an impression of a school that is sliding downhill.

But, as a parent of two Princeton High School students, and as a candidate for the school board, I must say that the school's public image bears no resemblance to reality.

My children attend a school where students compete to be chosen as peer group leaders, helping freshmen adjust to high school and learn to resist peer pressure. Even more competitive is the jostling to become a HITops leader, helping other students to resist the temptation to become sexually active. A school whose student leaders are actively involved in promulgating the sort of behavior that most of us value is not a school where it is cool to flash weapons and use drugs.

Moreover, academic standards in many classes are rigorous, the school has excellent teachers, and its students do not shy away from tough subjects. There are five calculus classes, for example, and three levels of calculus are offered. By the time the 219 members of this year's senior class graduate, 90 will have taken calculus, 42 girls and 48 boys. My daughter's calculus teacher is so dedicated that she held a two-hour session at the high school last Sunday to help prepare her students for the Advanced Placement Exam. About half her students attended. At least as many girls as boys are taking accelerated and advanced placement science courses. The girls are among the top students and are not at all shy about speaking up in class.

My son, a freshman, is taking a course in Pascal, a computer programming language that used to be offered only at universities. Next year, he'll take a course in C++, an even more advanced programming language.

But most parents that I speak to have never heard of this exemplary side of Princeton High School. All they know is its alleged drug and weapons problems. And I see a real danger here. It's not that drugs and weapons are of no consequence and that the schools should ignore them. Rather, it's that the sorts of transgressions that recently occurred are the sort that have always occurred in public schools as well as in private schools, which do not publicize them. Yet they are being taken as evidence that our public schools suddenly are dangerous and, by implication, are places where academics take a back seat.

When negative impressions like this persist, we all lose. Strong public schools are community treasures. If parents, misunderstanding what the public schools have to offer, yank their children out, I can virtually guarantee that our schools will go into a downward spiral and our town and our children will be poorer for it.

My vision for the public schools is that the school board encourage teachers and administrators who will work together to keep academic excellence for all of our children at the top of their list of priorities. I'd also like to see more courses that challenge and stimulate students in the middle as well as those at the very top and toward the bottom of the academic spectrum. But my dream as a parent and school board candidate is that the community understand and appreciate what we have now in our public schools, and what we stand to lose if we abandon them.

Incumbent Michael Littman Needed On Board in Year of Turnover, Upheaval

To the Editor of Town Topics:

It is with great pleasure that I endorse the candidacy of Michael Littman for a Township seat on the Princeton Regional School Board. Michael is an independent thinker who is able to come up with creative solutions to difficult problems. I have attended most School Board meetings for the last five years and am very impressed with the thoroughness and the depth of Michael's questions ... he clearly does all of his homework!

Michael Littman has done an exemplary job of running the Board Policy, Personnel and Legislative committee. In this time of turnover and upheaval in the school administration it is vital that we re-elect Littman to the Board. He is the only incumbent running this year. He is a man of experience, integrity, intelligence, and reliability. We must support his hardworking dedication to all children and staff of the Princeton Regional Schools by electing Littman on April 16th.

Continually Changing PHS Principals Gives Us Reputation for Instability

To the Editor of Town Topics:

I submit to you a letter which I have sent to each of the members of the Board of Education. A similar letter was also sent to Dr. Bossart. I realize that by the time you receive this the matter may already have been decided, so I leave the decision to you as to whether this might be published or not, though in my eyes it is important to show Dr. Byron support for the reasons indicated below.

I am writing you after hearing the distressing news that the reappointment of Mr. Byron as principal of Princeton High School is under question.

I taught in the Princeton Regional School system for 21 years and am now retired. As a teacher I realized the importance of having a principal who nourished and cared deeply for his students, who supported and encouraged his staff, who, as a leader, set goals and promoted ideals for the school body, who was a listener, a coordinator of peoples and projects, a fair disciplinarian and a warm, trustworthy individual, interested in every aspect of educating the young.

I believe Leigh Byron to be that kind of person.

I am disturbed that this community may once again suffer from the divisiveness which seems to arise too often of late in our school system. I fear that, with the continued changing of high school principals (three in the last ten years, not counting the interim appointments), it will become harder to attract good candidates for teaching and supervisory positions. I worry also that high school-age students who may feel they cannot put their trust in continued excellence at PHS will seek other schools. I am concerned, in addition, that prospective newcomers will turn away from Princeton to other towns in search of more stable school systems.

I hope you will consider carefully the question of Mr. Byron's reappointment and I encourage you to vote to retain him.

School Board Candidate Ricardo Bruce Committed to the Princeton Community

To the Editor of Town Topics:

All the members of the Board of the Princeton Schools value fiscal responsibility, excellence in our academic and extracurricular programs, and work toward a constructive relationship among board, administrators, staff and students. But the big challenges may be healing the current rifts and re-establishing the trust of our community and our staff do not have easy answers. Earning again the trust of our community and the staff of our schools will require cooperative work. It will require board members who do not make snap judgements, board members willing and able first to listen to all stakeholders and then to help us all define and support our common good.

I believe that the experience and judgement Ricardo Bruce brings to the school board would help. Indeed, his ability to listen may be a most vital contribution to the School Board.

Rick and his family know and are committed to the Princeton community. He and his family have lived in the same home on Witherspoon Street for 20 years. They are deeply rooted in our civic life. Both his sons attended the Princeton schools, and are now beginning promising careers. His oldest son speaks several languages and is studying in a graduate business program in Mexico; Rick's younger son is finishing his bachelors degree at Ohio State University. Rick's wife, Rosetta, now serves on the Princeton High School Scholarship Committee and has volunteered at the Princeton Medical Center for the past 16 years.

Rick has contributed extensively to our schools and to our community. Further, he is an experienced board member. He is now trustee of the board of the Princeton Public Library. He has served on the Princeton Borough Affordable Housing Commission and on the board of the E.T. Byrd Scholarship Fund. He was one of the initiators of the hockey team at Princeton High School.

Rick brings his professional experience in management and in the arts to the School Board. He holds degrees from Temple University and from Philadelphia College of Art. He now designs publications at ETS. He was also founder and principal of Alron Advertising here in Princeton.

I urge Borough voters to participate in the upcoming School Board election and to ask Rick Bruce to continue his longterm commitment to our community.

PRIORITIES

- Focus teachers, students and administrators on improving the quality of the educational programs through the use of Total Quality Management/Continuous Improvement Techniques. Those techniques such as bench marking, assessment, work teams, empowerment and process mapping, will enable the district to operate more effectively.

I have taught and consulted on these topics in both the public and private sector, including the U.S. Academy at West Point, the New York City Transit Authority and Bendix Corporation.

- Establish curriculum standards that would ensure the finest possible education for all students by the year 2000. Course work and support services should be geared to a standard that is competitive with children studying in other industrialized countries as well as the best districts in the United States.
- Maintain and strengthen programs such as music, arts, sports and drama. They enable students to learn life skills and to have the opportunity to assume leadership roles. The experience of working in a group is invaluable, as is knowledge of the arts.

From 1980-1985, I was Dean of Students at Ramapo College in New Jersey, which required my supervision of a variety of programs, including athletics, cultural activities, leadership training, as well as career placement, counseling and disabled student services.

- Review and evaluate how we allocate our financial resources to maximize their effectiveness. I will explore new ways of funding programs and equipment through corporate sponsorship and foundation support. I will aggressively seek assistance from foundations and charitable trusts and always remember who pays the bills of the school district.
- Support teachers and administrators to increase the excitement of the learning process, to challenge old paradigms and to seek new and creative ways to teach numeracy, literacy and communication. I want our educators to be risk takers and our children to be capable of self-directed learning. I want us to move forward as an educational community.

I taught at elementary and secondary levels before entering administrative positions. At present, I teach undergraduates and graduate students as an adjunct professor of management at John Jay College and the Nelson A. Rockefeller College of Public Affairs and Policy.

The Princeton Chamber Symphony and Music Director Mark Laycock will conclude their 1995-96 season in typical Chamber Symphony fashion - a versatile program with a seldom-heard work, an American composer, and a traditional favorite. The music of Stravinsky, Rochberg and Mozart caps the Chamber Symphony's 16th season, on Sunday, April 14, at 4 in Richardson Auditorium on the Princeton University campus.

The concert begins with Stravinsky's work in the style of the Brandenburg concerti. His Concerto in E Flat, Dumbarton Oaks, was written for 15 instruments and was named for the estate of R. W. Bliss near Washington, D.C. where the work premiered.

The centerpiece of the program is a work by American composer George Rochberg entitled Music for the Magic Theater. Based on Mahler's Ninth Symphony, this work will feature pianist Charles Abramovic and soloists from the Chamber Symphony. The program will conclude with Mozart's Hoffner Symphony.

Before the performance, Palmer Square Management and several Princeton-area retailers will hold a fashion show to benefit the Chamber Symphony. From 2 to 3:30, interested patrons are invited to the Nassau Inn to see spring and summer collections from Ann Taylor, Talbots, Jaeger, the European Steilmann Collection and other Palmer Square retailers.

All tickets are $25. For information call 497-0020.

The Roches Return For McCarter Concert

The Roches, celebrating the release of their newest recording We Go Home Now, return to McCarter Theatre on Friday, April 12 at 8 p.m. Good seats are still available.

The Roche sisters have been a singing group for as long as they can remember, whether they were singing Christmas carols around their home in Park Ridge, N.J., or helping their father make up songs to support local Democratic candidates. It was singer-songwriter Paul Simon who first brought Maggie and Terre into the studio as back up singers on his 1974 album There Goes Rhymin' Simon; the following year he co-produced their debut as a duo, Seductive Reasoning. The next year the Roches began performing as a trio.

Their self-titled album The Roches, released in 1979, made several ten-best lists. Other albums include Nurds, Keep On Doing (which introduced their trademark rendition of Handel's "Hallelujah Chorus Speak and A Dove. In 1990 the Roches realized a lifelong dream by recording their first Christmas album, We Three Kings, whose two dozen tracks included many of their favorite carols plus a few original songs.

The trio has also released their first children's album, Will You Be My Friend?, which earned the Parent's Choice Gold Award.

Tickets are $18, $19, $20 and $21. To charge tickets, call 683-8000.

Three Princeton Groups In A Cappella Evening

Three Princeton o coppello singing groups, The Nassoons, Double Treble and Voice Versa, will present "An Evening of A Cappella" Friday, April 19, at 8 in the theater at Villa Victoria Academy, 376 West Upper Ferry Road, Ewing Township.

The Nassoons are an 11-member all-male group from Princeton University. Double Treble, an all-female group, was created in 1987 out of the Boudinotes, another well-known, now-defunct Princeton a cappella group. Double Treble sings original arrangements from old standards to big band to jazz and country.

Voice Versa was launched in 1993 when 11 young men met during orientation week at Westminster Choir College. Voice Versa performs a wide variety of tunes ranging from traditional Irish folk songs to spirituals to Billy Joel numbers.

Villa Victoria's o coppello student ensemble will also perform one number. Singing with this group are Lauren Ketterer and Elizabeth Zamorski, both of Princeton and Jennifer Hollstein of Princeton Junction. The school's 13-member adult o coppello ensemble will also perform a number. Singing for this group are Kevin and Carole Moore, both of Princeton. Mrs. Moore directs both Villa Victoria groups.

Proceeds from the concert will help support Villa Victoria Academy's computer program. Tickets are $10 and $15. For tickets call 737-3568.

Dresden State Orchestra Due at State Theatre

The Dresden Staatskapelle will make its State Theatre debut on Wednesday, April 17 at 8 under the baton of conductor Giuseppe Sinopoli. The program will highlight German Romanticism with Strauss' Metamorphosen and Bruckner's Symphony No. 4 in E-flat Major (Romantic).

Known for its interpretations of both the standard and contemporary repertoire, the Dresden Staatskapelle (Dresden State Orchestra) is the orchestra of the Dresden State Opera.

For telephone ticket orders or information call (908) 246-7469 Monday through Saturday 10 to 6. Ticket prices are $41, $36, $23 and $16.

A pre-performance lecture is scheduled at 7 at the United Methodist Church, a short walk from the theater. Lecture tickets are $6 ($5 for subscribers).

Concert by Clarinetist To Aid Young Audiences

Young Audiences of New Jersey will present the clarinetist Richard Stoltzman in concert with pianist Irma Vallecillo on Saturday, April 13 at 9. The performance will be held at The Allan P. Kirby Arts Center of The Lawrenceville School.

Mr. Stoltzman's virtuosity, musicianship and personal magnetism have catapulted him to the highest ranks of international acclaim, making him one of today's most sought-after concert artists. As soloist with more than 100 orchestras, as a recitalist and chamber music performer, as a jazz artist, and as a recording artist, he has defied categorization.

Last year alone, the professional artists who work with Young Audiences of New Jersey taught more than 350,000 children in 500 schools. One of these artists, Charlotte Blake Alston, will open the concert for Mr. Stoltzman.

The concert also celebrates the release of Mr. Stoltzman's and Ms. Vallecillo's latest recording, Amber Waves. The two will be performing a number of pieces from that recording, including "An American Triptych" and an arrangement of Gershwin songs.

Tickets are $30 for adults and $15 for students with valid identification. Benefit tickets are priced at $150 per person for dinner with Mr. Stoltzman and a post-concert champagne reception; $75 per person for dinner, concert and reception; and $50 for the concert and reception alone.

For concert tickets or for more information, all Young Audiences of New Jersey at 683-1306.

Haydn's "Creation" Next For Musical Amateurs

Frances Slade, music director of Princeton Pro Musica, will conduct Haydn's oratorio The Creation, the Society's last reading in its '95-96 season, on Sunday, April 14 at 4 in the Unitarian Church.

The "cast" for this reading includes Anne Ackley Gray, soprano, as Gabriel, Margaret Poyner Galbraith, soprano, as Eve; Thomas Farraco, tenor, as Uriel; and Elem Eley, bass, as both Raphael and Adam. The full orchestra which provides the accompaniment will include two reproduction "natural" or valveless trumpets.

Anyone who enjoys choral singing is welcome to join the chorus on a one-time basis for a $4 admission fee or to join as a member for the season for $20 ($30 for couples). The admission fee includes refreshments and the use of a choral score. Students and non-participants are admitted free of charge.

For information, call Mary Kemp, president, at 394-5034.

Glee Club to Sing St. Matthew Passion

The Princeton University Glee Club led by Richard Tang Yuk will present J.S. Bach's St. Matthew Passion in performances Friday and Saturday at Richardson Auditorium. Both performances will be at 7 p.m.

The arias and larger dramatic roles will be sung by professional artists. Soloists include Alan Bennett as the Evangelist and John Prescott as Jesus. Arias will be sung by Martha Elliott, Alexandra Montano and Kevin Deas. The orchestras will be led by Nancy Wilson with Kathy Shanklin at the organ and Lauretta O'Sullivan playing the cello as continuo.

The St. John Passion dates from 1729 and is the longest and largest work of its kind from the Baroque period. In recreating Jesus' last days on earth, Bach drew together formidable forces, including a double orchestra consisting of flutes, oboes, strings and continuo, as well as a double chorus and 14 vocal soloists. In using two separate choirs, Bach created two separate identities which are maintained throughout the piece. One choir represents the disciples and the other the larger congregation of "the faithful."

Tickets may be reserved in advance by calling the Richardson box office at 258-5000.

Versatile Folk Musician
To Play Concert at Church

The Princeton Folk Music Society will sponsor a concert by Joel Mabus, a singer-songwriter who is also a musician with a facility on banjo, guitar, mandolin and fiddle. The concert will take place Friday, April 19, at 8:15 at Christ Congregation Church, 55 Walnut Lane.

Mr. Mabus is a talented songwriter whose work has been recorded by many of today's best folk performers. Since he began performing full time in 1975 he has traveled across North America playing for audiences at festivals, folk clubs, concert halls and radio shows, including frequent appearances with Garrison Keillor on A Prairie Home Companion.

Mr. Mabus writes funny songs that survive many listenings and topical songs that are not preachy. He has recorded ten albums, most recently Promised Land and Flotpick and Clawhammer.

Admission to the concert is $10 for the general public, $7 for members of the Folk Music Society and affiliated organizations, $3 for children up to age 11, and by donation for senior citizens. There are no advance sales; ample free parking is available. For information call 799-0944.

Male Vocal Ensemble
In Concert with Boychoir

Chanticleer, an all-male vocal ensemble, will appear with The American Boychoir on Friday, April 19 at 8 at the Princeton University Chapel. The two ensembles will perform sacred and popular a cappella works ranging from the Renaissance to the 20th century.

The program will begin with both ensembles singing several movements from 15th-century masses. Next, they will sing Ave Morio by Robert Parsons, Hymn to the Mother of God by John Tavener, and Beati quorum visio by Charles Villiers Stanford. The program continues with two selections by Thomas Weelkes and Toke him, eorth, for cherishing by Herbert Howells.

After intermission, Chanticleer will sing a selection of folk songs followed by The American Boychoir singing "George Gershwin Song Medley," selections by the great American songwriter and composer as arranged by local musician Bill Holcomb. The program closes with both ensembles singing two spirituals from Where the Sun Will Never Go Down, as arranged by Chanticleer's Artistic Director Joseph Jennings.

Chanticleer, the only full-time classical vocal ensemble in the United States, has earned international renown as "an orchestra of voices." With its seamless blend of male voices ranging from countertenor to bass, Chanticleer has developed a remarkable reputation over its 18th-year history. The ensemble performs more than 100 concerts yearly across the United States, Europe, and Asia.

In addition to the Princeton performance, the two ensembles will perform at the Kennedy Center in Washington and at New York's Metropolitan Museum.

Reserved seating tickets, priced at $25, $15, $10, and $5 for students, may be ordered by calling the Princeton University Chapel Music Office at 258-3654.

No mystery. No ceremony. But a lot of deeply Christian thinking to apply in your daily life.

There are thoughtful hymns. The Lord's Prayer. Then, a different Lesson-Sermon every week, full of interesting ideas from the Bible and from Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures by Mary Baker Eddy.

And through it all, a concept of Love, divine Love, the way Christ Jesus lived it, that relates you to God in a new and revitalizing way.

Siberian Artist Igor Naskalov Now Headquartered in Princeton

Born in the Siberian City of Omsk, Igor Naskalov is an international artist who lives in Princeton.

"I go where I can be creative, where there are different opportunities, where I can explore myself and my art, and express myself," he explains.

Mr. Naskalov has lived in Princeton for the past five years, making it his headquarters, as he continues to travel, accepting commissions in the U.S. and abroad.

"I like Princeton," he says. "I came here because I had a portrait commission, and it's a good place for me and my wife and daughter. It's an international community, and I can also get to my other American clients, who are in New York state, New York City, Long Island, and Fairfield, Conn."

After earning two masters degrees (in interior design and decorative art, especially frescoes, murals and trompe l'oeil, and in fine arts) at universities in Moscow in the 1980s, Mr. Naskalov was commissioned to do portraits in Italy, where he also had an exhibit. He lived in Milan, as well as in Canada, New York, and San Francisco before coming to Princeton.

His work has been exhibited in the U.S. and in Canada, Italy, France, Russia, and Japan, and his paintings are in the collections of serious art dealers and private art lovers. In Princeton, his work is shown in the C G Gallery on Chambers Street, and he also recently completed a painting of the Nassau Inn, which is on display in the lobby of the Inn.

Another Focus

His portrait of area resident, the late Alice Kuhn Bleimaler, was unveiled at a memorial concert in her honor performed by the Princeton Chamber Symphony last month.

His past work has included portrait commissions of such public figures as Russian cosmonauts, Olympic athletes, former Cuban official Raul Castro, and former California Governor Goodwin Knight, as well as many persons in the private sector.

Interior work, such as multi-figured frescoes, murals, trompe l'oeil, and handpainted antique reproduction furniture, provides another focus for Mr. Naskalov's creativity.

"I feel I am able to bring fine art to interior work," he explains. "Basically, I try to bring the same tradition and movement that was found in the Renaissance. Not just the skills and techniques and style, but the focal point is that I try to be able to create any type of beauty I feel — portraits, still life, landscapes, interiors."

"This is the root of the Renaissance. Raphael did rooms, altar compositions, as well as portraits. Michaelangelo, Leonardo — they all did more than one thing. And whatever I am doing, I always try to bring my own creativity, my own touch to my work."

Clients are enthusiastic about all aspects of Mr. Naskalov's work. In Princeton, his murals can be seen in the Casabona Ristorante on State Road, and in the exterior work of Freschetti's Pasta Factory & Cafe in the

CREATIVE EXPRESSION: "In art, people are coming back to beauty, and they're coming back to themselves. People want to be surrounded by art that makes them feel. Original art makes you feel something. It has a harmony for you, whether it's a landscape, portrait or still life. That's why art is always alive." International artist, Igor Naskalov, who lives in Princeton, is shown near one of his own favorite creations — a still life in oil, "Wine & Bread."

Princeton Shopping Center, as well as in numerous private residences, where he has created beautiful images on walls and ceilings.

Final Harmony

In addition, his handpainted reproduction antique furniture, created for American and international companies, has enhanced his already established reputation in the art world. Articles about his work have appeared in ArtSpeak and Fine Art, and in many international publications.

"What I enjoy is the creativity," he points out. "I am using all the traditions of the Old Masters. I'm striving to transform the Old Masters' style and techniques into my own feelings. If I am working in fine art, I work in oil. If I work in murals, I use fresco and water-based colors."

"The challenge is to achieve the final harmony in what I am doing. There can be harmony of color, of character, and of mood. I get pleasure from this challenge."

Mr. Naskalov explains that he is on a continual quest to search for, explore, and expand his own artistic boundaries, always seeking beauty in his own creations and in the work of others.

"Each artist must develop not only his skills, but his vision," he says. "I take any opportunity to travel, especially to Europe, and make connections. I work with dealers, galleries, interior designers, and furniture companies. Traveling helps me to express myself and find out about myself. With my work and travels, I get to see places from the inside, not the outside like a tourist."

"Also, one day a week, I am in the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York. I have recently copied a Vermeer. Copying is a special skill. I'm always looking for beauty, and I'm also looking for myself through the other artist."

On occasion, Mr. Naskalov's wife, Anna Zavrzhnova, works with him, especially on interior projects. They met in art school in Russia, he recalls, and her portrait work, in the neo-romantic school, is exhibited in shows and galleries around the world.

Mr. Naskalov can be reached at 921-9369.

Mediterra Restaurant Offers Influences of Many Cuisines

"People will be familiar with everything we serve, but we'll make it different. We give it a little twist of our own, enough of a surprise to make it interesting. For example, we'll serve skirt steak, with tabouli salad, instead of French fries."

"We are offering the cuisine of Mediterranean countries, and we'll have Spanish, Italian, Greek, and Egyptian influences," continues Carlo Momo, one of the owners of the new Mediterra restaurant at 29 Hulfish Street.

"They have very similar cuisines," he adds, "but each emphasizes something different. And these different elements of the cuisine make it unique."

Mr. Momo, along with his brother Raoul Momo, and Michael Ellis, hope that customers will enjoy the unique element of Mediterra. It is certainly unlike other restaurants in the area, and the partners are confident that people will appreciate both the quality of the food and the appealing atmosphere.

"When people come to a place like this, I think they will be willing to experiment a bit, try out different dishes," says Mr. Momo. "We have a tapas bar, which is new to some people here, and we hope to educate people about tapas."

Tapas, similar to appetizers and snacks, are a Spanish specialty, he explains. They include a variety of items, such as olives, mushrooms, stuffed peppers, assorted cheeses, vegetable turnovers and frittatas, usually served with wine or beer. Customers can relax with their tapas at the bar or at small tables, which will soon be available outside as well.

Value Fine Dining

The Momo brothers have already been very successful with their other Princeton restaurant, Teresa's Pizzeria Cafe, and they are pleased with their Palmer Square location.

"We've established a lot of good will with Teresa's," points out Mr. Momo, "so when this space became available, we decided to take the opportunity to try something a little different. We think we're right between Teresa's and what everyone else is doing, and we offer value in fine dining."

"We believe Princeton is a great market, and this will be a wonderful setting. I'd really like to see Princeton continue to become a dining mecca, with fine restaurants of all levels. We like to think we've been a part of that transformation with Teresa's, and now we'll continue with Mediterra."

"What is especially appealing about our food is the simple preparation," adds Mr. Ellis, a former chef with extensive restaurant management experience. "We don't use heavy sauces or overseasoning. It's fresh tasty food. Everything is very fresh. We buy fish every day, and we serve a lot of seafood and fish specialties. It's the freshness and the way we want to serve it — this is important. We let the ingredients speak for themselves."

"We also offer light fare, such as salads, between lunch and dinner, and so far the customers seem very pleased. They are enjoying a variety of dishes, and they seem to like trying something different. For lunch, they might sample a grilled portobello club sandwich with garlic aoli, greens and pancetta; or shredded lamb and lentil salad with roasted almonds and Cabrales vinaigrette."

For dinner, grilled tuna with black olive tapenade, herb polenta and herb oil is popular, as is shell fish cippino with shrimp, clams, mussels, scallops, and lobster.

Sunday Brunch

Appetizers include sauteed whole garlic prawns with salsa verde; tomato,

DISTINCTIVE DINING: "We offer full Mediterranean fare. We don't have a rigid interpretation of fixed recipes, but instead, different Mediterranean influences, including the cuisines of Spain, Italy, Greece, and Egypt." Chef Joseph Kerrigan (left), and partners Michael Ellis (center) and Carlo Momo (right) in the new Mediterra restaurant at 29 Hulfish Street, look forward to introducing customers to their special cuisine.

cucumber and feta cheese 30-minute wait," notes Mr. Momo. Leisuredly dining in attractive surroundings is the key to Mediterra. Customers enjoy the fresh flowers, white linens and the large interpretative mural of Matisse's "The Dancer," as well as a special room for private dining.

"We are doing something we love to do, and we're trying to give people something they're looking for," point out Mr. Momo and Mr. Ellis. "We like the healthy style of living, and the whole concept here is healthy food. We enjoy seeing people leave here happy. That's what it's all about."

Mediterra is open seven days: lunch (Sunday brunch) 11:30 to 2:30; dinner Sunday through Thursday 5 to 10; Friday and Saturday until 11. 252-9680.

ART

Art Museum Schedules April Children's Talks

Paint and polish will be the focus of this month's Children's Talks at the Princeton University Art Museum.

The talks, which last approximately 30 minutes, will be given at 11 a.m. Saturday mornings. They are designed to introduce the museum's collections to children from kindergarten through fifth grade. Younger siblings are welcome if accompanied by an adult. Admission is free.

On April 13, docent Maxine Lewis will tell the stories of some of the museum's "Painted Ladies." Gypsy with a Cigarette, French artist Edouard Manet's 1862 oil on canvas, and The Portrait of the Hartley Family, a large oil painting by 18th-century American artist Henry Benbridge, will be two of the paintings discussed.

On April 20, Princeton metalsmith Jackie O'Neill will present "The Maser Craftsmen of Gold and Silver before Columbus." The legend of El Dorado and the value of gold as currency and jewelry will be examined. Concentrating on the properties of gold, silver, and their alloys, Ms. O'Neill will demonstrate basic techniques of metalsmithing, such as hammering, casting, soldering, fusing, granulation, and filigree.

"PORTRAIT OF THE HARTLEY FAMILY," an oil on canvas by Henry Bainbridge, American, 1743-1812, will be the topic of a Talk for Children on 11 a.m. Saturday, April 13, at the Princeton University Art Museum.

Children's Talks will resume in the fall.

Exhibits

"New Jersey Artist Series: Works by Tova Beck-Friedman," an exhibition of five large sculptures and a variable number of small clay works by Hoboken artist Tova Beck-Friedman, has opened at the New Jersey State Museum and will remain on view through May 26.

The artist, born in Israel, creates additive sculptural forms - contemporary stelae - to commemorate events, consecrate places and honor individuals that have never existed, except in desire. They are veiled in mystery and the viewer is asked to be an archaeologist to discover or conjure a meaning.

On view until June 10 is an exhibition in the main lobby of The Jewish Center of Princeton entitled, "Paper-cutting, a Jewish Art." It introduces an art form that dates back to 17th-century Jewish communities in Spain, Portugal, Germany, North Africa, Poland and elsewhere. Today, after the Holocaust, there has been a strong revival of interest, and the art is flourishing in the United States and in Israel.

Using scissors, razor blades or knives, the artist cuts intricate designs into the paper which results in an artistic expression of a Jewish theme or subject.

Represented in this show are six of the foremost artists of Judaic papercuts in the United States. They are Dan Howarth, Karen Shain Schloss, Judith A. Swan, Deborah Ugoretz, Tsirl Waletzky and Elana Weinberg.

The exhibit can be seen Mondays through Thursdays from 9 to 5 and Fridays from 9 to 3. All are invited to a reception for the artists at The Jewish Center on Sunday, April 21 from 2 to 4.

An art exhibit featuring works by Princeton Day School high school students is now at the Merwick unit of The Medical Center at Princeton, 79 Bayard Lane. The black and white photographs were donated by students of Eileen Hohmuth-Lemonick as a gift to the patients of Merwick.

The show will run until May 30, when the photographs will hang permanently in the hallways throughout the building.

Tiger Lacrosse Teams Pummel Brown, Softball Wins Five of Five; Crews Sweep on Carnegie, But Season May Be Over for Baseball

The majority of Princeton sports teams are as hot as the weather is not these days. Playing in the first week of April with temperatures at least 10 degrees below normal, the lacrosse, softball and crew teams did not lose a single contest.

The same cannot be said about the cold Tiger baseball team, which opened its Ivy season one day, and for all practical purposes found itself out of contention the next, losing three of four games. (See following article)

Coach Bill Tierney's lacrosse team rolls on toward an almost certain date in the NCAA tournament next month. Last week it polished off two very different opponents; both Penn, a club team, and Brown, which shared the league crown with Princeton last season, fell to the Tigers by double-digit margins.

Princeton (6-1 overall, 3-0 Ivy League) followed a 19-4 drubbing of the Quakers Wednesday at 1952 Stadium with an impressive 15-5 win at Brown in Providence, R.I., Saturday as 1,718 fans at Stevenson Field went home disappointed.

The Tiger attack was too much for the Bears, who could not stop sophomores Jesse Hubbard and Chris Massey from scoring four goals apiece. Freshman attackman Lorne Smith had a hat trick Saturday, while jun-

Surprisingly, of all the top scorers in the National Basketball Association today, NOT ONE ever led the NCAA in scoring when they were in college ... That includes such NBA scoring stars as Michael Jordan, Shaquille O'Neal, Hakeem Olajuwon, David Robinson, Karl Malone and Charles Barkley.

I bet you didn't know SDB has been serving Princeton and the surrounding area for 61 years. Call today for a quote.

Here's the story of an unusual player who set a baseball record ... In the entire history of the National League, only one player has ever hit 2 grand-slam homers in the same game — and the only player who did it was, of all things, a pitcher! ... Pitcher Tony Cloninger of the Braves hit 2 grand-slams in a game in 1966 ... Meanwhile, none of the great sluggers in National League history ever did it.

Oddly enough, you can strike out a lot in baseball and still be very successful ... The 3 batters who struck out the most times in big league history are ALL in the Hall of Fame ... They are Reggie Jackson, Willie Stargell and Mike Schmidt.

BROWN OUT IN PROVIDENCE: Brown had been billed as a tough opponent, but the Bruins' were less powerful than expected last Saturday, falling to the Tigers 15-5. Here, freshman Lorne Smith, who has scored at least once in every game this season, looks to score again. He finished with a hat trick.

ior attackman Todd Elchberger came off the bench to score four points, in the form of one goal and three assists. Sophomore attackman Jon Hess added two goals and an assist, as the Tigers outshot Brown by a 40-32 margin.

Princeton, which scored four times in the game's first six minutes, has now scored 85 goals in its last five games, the highest total over such a period in the program's 115-year history.

Tierney gave Pat Cairns the nod in the crease against Brown, and the junior goalie responded by making nine saves in a little more than three quarters. Senior Pancho Gutstein, who competed for the start in practice last week, relieved Cairns in the fourth quarter.

"We're actually going week to week," Cairns said of the goalie situation. "It was good to get back in a game where my play would be needed."

The rest of the Tigers did what they could to make Cairns' job easier. Junior mid-fielders James Mitchell and Dennis Kramer controlled the majority of faceoffs, while defensemen Becket Wolf, Rob Brawner and Kurt Lunkenheimer kept David Evans, Brown's All-America attackman, in check.

Against Penn, however, Princeton's defense was rarely tested, and the Tigers jumped out to an 8-0 lead less than 10 minutes into the contest. Eichelberger had a career game against the Quakers, scoring three times and assisting on four other goals.

"Before this year, he didn't always show up ready to play," according to Tierney. "Now his attitude's different. Todd came to play today, and he was the difference." Besides Eichelberger's exploits, Princeton boasted a very balanced attack Wednesday, with 13 different Tigers finding the back of the Penn net.

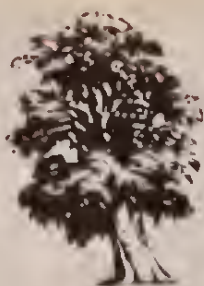

Princeton looks to continue its march through the Ivy League Saturday, April 13 when the Tigers travel to Cambridge, Mass., to take on a strong Harvard squad at 2 p.m. Princeton then hosts the Australian National Team at 7:30 p.m. Sunday.

Respect Due Now?

Some felt the women's lacrosse team did not get the respect due to it in last week's rankings, as 5-1 Princeton was rated No. 5. The team did all it could to move up in the poll this week, however, as the Tigers beat then-seventh-ranked Temple 15-10 in Philadelphia Wednesday before handing No. 12 Brown its first loss of the season Saturday in Providence.

Princeton (7-1, 3-0) used a second-half surge to bury the Bears, 18-7, outscoring Brown by a 12-3 count in the final 35 minutes. Princeton outshot Brown, 31-18, in the game.

Senior attack Abigail Gutslein led the Tigers with five goals, while senior midfielder Lisa Rebane had four goals and three assists on the afternoon. Sophomore attack Cristl Samaras also had seven points on three goals and four assists. Sophomore attack Melissa Cully had three assists for the Tigers.

Junior defender Carter Marsh also had a standout game for Princeton, as she helped shut down the Bear attack while adding three goals to the Tiger cause. Senior JJ Longsinger played well alongside Marsh on defense.

When Brown players were able to get shots off, more often than not they were stymied by senior goaltender Erin O'Neill. O'Neill made 11 saves against the Bears, and has only allowed 43 goals in Princeton's eight games.

Despite allowing a season-high 10 goals against Temple, O'Neill and the Tigers were able to get past the Owls the same way Princeton beat Brown: strong second-half play.

"Our play was the epitome of smothering defense and explosive attack in the second half," Samaras said. "In the first half we had no fundamentals, but the second half we started with the basics. And once we fall into our rhythm, we're dangerous."

Gutslein opened the scoring in the second half with one of five goals on the afternoon, putting the Tigers up by a 9-5 count. Princeton returns to 1952 Stadium Wednesday, April 10 when it hosts Penn at 3:30 p.m. The Tigers will also battle Yale at home, as Princeton takes on the Elis at 1 p.m. this Saturday.

Softball Sweeps Four

Softball matched the combined records of the lacrosse teams last week, sweeping doubleheaders from Rider and Connecticut.

Saturday the team beat UConn, 2-0 and 5-4, in Storrs, Conn., extending Princeton's winning streak to 22 games, the second-longest streak in school history. By defeating the No. 3 team in the Northeast region, the Tigers ran their record to 23-5-1.

Junior pitcher Maureen Davies (14-3) tamed the Huskies in the first game, fanning five and yielding just five hits in her sixth shutout of the season. Freshman right fielder Wendy Herm and junior designated player Heather Massey knocked in both Princeton runs.

Without Davies on the mound, however, things got a little interesting in the second game. The Tigers' poor glove-work allowed UConn to come back from an early three-run deficit before Princeton's two runs in the top of the seventh broke a 3-3 tie. Singles by left fielder Tara Christle and third baseman Michelle Morale, both juniors, produced both Tiger scores, and the the Huskies could only manage an unearned run off freshman pitcher Lynn Miller (5-2) in the bottom of the inning.

The Tigers took a 3-0 lead early with a rally keyed by senior second baseman Traci Fox's two-run double. Princeton's play Thursday afternoon on 1895 Field was was against the Huskies, as the Tigers knocked off Rider, 4-1 and 8-0.

The latter game saw the invocation of the eight-run mercy rule, as Princeton scored a combined seven times in the fifth and sixth innings to build an insurmountable lead.

and Penn State round out the top 10. Despite their lopsided victory over Brown, the Tiger women have not budged from fifth place. Maryland remains in first, followed by Loyola, Penn State, and Virginia, the only team to have beaten the Orange and Black.

"Our goal is always to eight-run rule the local teams and even the Ivies," according to Morale. "That should be the goal for every team we play."

In the first Rider game, Davies allowed just one run as Princeton captured its 19th-straight victory. The Tigers hosted a doubleheader with Delaware yesterday at 1895 Field. Old Nassau will open its Ivy schedule this weekend, as the squad travels to Penn Saturday and Cornell Sunday for twinbills.

Great Day on the Lake

The women's crew team had its eight-year home victory streak snapped March 31 against Brown, but Princeton rebounded on Lake Carnegie to defeat Rutgers and Columbia Saturday.

The Tigers' first varsity boat finished in 6:37.9, beating the Scarlet Knights by 15 seconds. The Lions finished the course in 7:01.0. Princeton's other three boats also won their respective races.

The women's team's success was duplicated by both the men's heavyweight and lightweight squads, as the first varsity boat swamped Rutgers by 9.2 seconds, 6:47.8 to 6:57.0.

Georgetown fell to the lightweight crew, 4-0, with Princeton's first varsity boat edging the Hoyas' top boat, 6:06.1 to 6:21.9.

All three teams are away this weekend, as the lightweights travel to Navy and the heavyweights to Penn (with Columbia) Saturday, while the women will row at Cornell Sunday.

NOTES: In the latest poll, Princeton has moved back up to second behind Maryland. Virginia, which was beaten by North Carolina last week is third; Johns Hopkins, fourth, and the Tor Heels, fifth. Syracuse, Wake Forest, Boston College

Tiger Baseball Splits Pair with Dartmouth, But Harvard Sweep Leaves Princeton 1-3

Princeton's weekend on the baseball diamond started well but didn't stay that way. In the first four contests of the Ivy season, Princeton led off with a win over Dartmouth and then lost three straight — the Dartmouth nightcap, and both ends of a Harvard doubleheader.

The loss puts the Tigers at the bottom of the pile in the Lou Gehrig Division, with a 1-3 record. Once again, the rest of the division is chasing the Penn Quakers, whose 6-2-0 mark is currently tops in the whole league.

Princeton has already placed itself in the unpleasant position of needing Penn to have at least one really bad weekend in order to challenge for the division title. The Tigers also need to do some serious winning of their own.

That winning will have to begin on the road this weekend. Princeton will travel to Yale for a Saturday afternoon doubleheader, and to Brown on Sunday, for another twin-bill. The Elis are 1-3, having lost two to Columbia on Sunday, one day after splitting a pair with Penn. The Bears (2-2) went 1-1 against each of the same two teams last weekend.

The Tigers' 7-2 win in the Friday opener was due largely to a complete-game pitching appearance by sophomore Joe Machado. The Massachusetts native allowed two runs on four hits, struck out five and walked only one.

He was helped in his efforts by some hard hitting from captain Mike Ciminiello. The Tiger captain was 2-for-3 with a home run, a double, two runs scored and three RBIs.

Second baseman Dave Ekelund continued to produce for Princeton, also going 2-for-3. The senior infielder had a double, two runs scored, and an RBI.

Ciminiello's slugging continued into the nightcap, but that was about all the Tigers

SLUGGING STILL: A 5-for-14 performance this weekend kept Mike Ciminiello atop the list of Tiger hitters, but even more exciting was the fact that a home run against Dartmouth put the senior captain closer to two school records. With 18 career homers, Ciminiello is three away from tying Drew Stratton for the all-time record of 21, and six away from tying Stratton's single season record of 11.

took with them. Even by going 3-for-4 with two runs scored and a stolen base, Ciminiello could not get the Tigers off the ground.

Princeton trailed 7-5 going into the top of the seventh, but a five-run outburst from the visitors put thoughts of a final-inning rally out of the minds of the Tiger faithful.

The loss went to sophomore Ben Smith. The right-hander from Texas gave up nine runs on 10 hits, walked five and struck out one. He got little help from the infield, which combined to commit four errors.

Harvard Sweeps

Harvard arrived at Clarke on Saturday after splitting a pair of games against Cornell. The Crimson went home with the Red Rolfe Division lead, sweeping the Tigers to go to 3-1.

The opener was scoreless through the first three innings, but Harvard broke the ice in the fourth, scoring on a wild pitch by Princeton starter Chris Yarbrough, and plating a second on the next play.

The Tigers scored single runs in the fourth, fifth, and sixth innings, but their consistency was trumped by the Crimson's three-run outburst in the sixth and two more in the seventh.

Yarbrough took the loss, lasting 5.2 innings. He allowed five runs on eight hits, struck out two and walked none as his record fell to 2-2.

Princeton cobbled together only five hits, the most exciting being an RBI double by third baseman Tommy Hage in the fourth. Tyler Bronson also had a double and an RBI.

A win in the final game would have made the weekend at least bearable, but instead the Tigers suffered a painful extra-inning loss.

Entering the eighth inning tied at 3-3, Harvard ripped starter Brian Volpp for four runs, and took one more from reliever Bryan Stroh to seemingly put the game away. The Tigers rallied in the bottom of the inning, but fell one run short, losing 8-7.

Volpp was strong through the first seven innings, allowing three runs on five hits, but broke down in the eighth. The Crimson scored four runs on three hits and a sacrifice, and sent the eventual winner across the plate on an error by shortstop Joe Quinn.

At the plate, Princeton drew 12 walks, which helped to offset a three-hit performance. Going into the bottom of the eighth trailing 8-3, the Tigers made an impressive show of trying to come back.

Sophomore Justin Griffin scored Mike Hazen and Bronson with an RBI double. Michael Keck was walked home, and Griffin scored on a fielder's choice to bring Princeton within one run.

Unfortunately for the Tigers, the Harvard pitching staff, which had managed only two strikeouts in the rest of the game, doubled that number over the final two batters. Reliever Mike Marcucci sat them down to end the contest.

PDS Girls' Lacrosse Wins Opener Against Pingry

Almost 11 months have passed since the Princeton Day girls' lacrosse team won the Prep A championship, but coach Leslie Hagen's team picked right up a week ago Tuesday where it left off last May.

The Panthers knocked off Pingry, 13-9 in their season's opener, and that victory, combined with their last 16 games a year ago, pushed their consecutive game winning streak to 17. The last team to defeat PD5 was Taft on April 8, 1995.

The win streak will be tested this week when the Blue and White travels to Connecticut to play Greenwich Academy this Friday, April 12. Greenwich defeated Princeton Day the day before Taft did. Prior to that PD5 was scheduled to face Morristown-Beard at home this past Tuesday, and Hun at home on Wednesday, April 10.

Dana DeCore was missing from the lineup in the Pingry contest, but all the other usual suspects who contributed to the Panthers' banner season last spring were there. Jess D'Altrui poured in four goals, Kathy Knapp contributed a hat trick, Robin Ackerman and Amanda Scherck each added a pair, and Nicole Svoboda and Karl Zarzecki tallied once.

The Panthers took a 6-3 lead at the half, and out-scored Big Blue 7-6 in the final 25 minutes.

Meanwhile, the boys' lacrosse team, which will be seeking to defend its Prep B title, opened with an 8-5 loss to Hillsborough High last week at home. A 2-0 first period lead by the Panthers was buried under a five-goal outburst by the visitors in the second. It was 5-3 at the half, and PD5 pulled to within one, 6-5 at the end of three, but the Panthers were blanked in the final quarter, while Hillsborough scored a pair of insurance tallies.

Mike O'Neill had a hat trick for the Blue and White and assisted on another. John Walsh and Matt Chatham also scored goals. Mark Gray made five saves in goal.

PDS Tennis Beats Hun 3-2 in Season Opener

The PD5 Tennis Team has served early notice that it intends to have a better season than last year, when the Panthers were hard pressed to win about a third of their 18 matches.

One of those losses was to Hun, 5-0, but facing the Raiders in the 1996 opener last week, coach Rome Campbell's team pulled off a surprise. Playing without one of the County's best, Peter Suomi, who is currently sidelined with a broken foot, the Blue and White nipped Hun, 3-2.

The unlikely heroes were a pair of freshmen, Brett Carty and Kal Vepuri, who won their matches at second and third singles. Carty disposed of Hun's Marshall Keener, 7-5, 6-2, and Vepuri came out on top in a three-set tussle with Alex Shaine, 6-1, 2-6, 6-4.

PDS gained its third and deciding point at first doubles, where junior Ameesh Shah and Tom Anderman survived a tough three-set match, to win against Hun for the first time in their careers. They won the first set 7-5, then dropped a second set tiebreaker, 4-7, before rallying to capture the final set 6-4.

Gavin Jackson, who had moved up from number two singles to number one in Suomi's absence, lost 6-0, 6-2 to Rip Rice. Hun also took the second doubles competition when Tapan Taylor and Adam Wong defeated Jake Dickinson and Tom Kim, 6-1, 6-0.

This week PDS will play Ranney on Wednesday, April 10 and West Windsor-Plainsboro, the following day both on the road. WWP, always a strong team in the County, will provide another good test of how well PDS will do this spring.

PDS Baseball, Softball Lose Season Openers

The Princeton Day baseball and softball teams both were defeated in their season openers this past Monday.

the four-hit pitching of Mike Roberts. Indicative of the inexperience on the PDS squad, a freshman, Brian McKitish, opened the season on the mound, and allowed five runs on four hits through five innings. He then switched to shortstop and had two of his team's four singles. Right-fielder Robert Paun had the other two.

The softball team was more competitive, before losing to Gill St. Bernards, 11-6. A home run in the fifth inning by Sara Hart gave the Blue and White a 5-4 lead, but the defense fell apart in the top of the sixth, and GSB scored six times, aided by four errors. Brittany Golcher had two hits and an RBI and freshman Sharon Herbert had a pair of hits.

The baseball team will resume play against Pennington on Saturday, April 13, the softball team will play George on Wednesday, April 10 and Lawrenceville on Friday.

Stuart Lacrosse Loses Opening Game to Hun

The Stuart lacrosse team opened its season with a 7-10 loss to Hun School last Thursday.

"We were down 5-0 at the half," said coach Anne Weitzman. "It was nice to see our girls come back; the score was 8-7 at one point. It was a good first game."

Senior Gia Fruscione contributed two goals, with one assist going to Megan Collier. Sarah Gomez also notched a pair; Jenita Davis picked up one assist to Gomez. Single tallies came from Alicia Fruscione, Devon Hosey and Megan Hunter. Goalie Micaela Shellaby made 15 saves.

According to coach Weitzman, strong defense came from Lauren Cornew at defense wing and from cover point Kate Baus.

This week, Stuart will host Blair on Wednesday, April 10, and a rematch with Hun is set for Friday. On Saturday, Stuart will participate in a play day at Princeton Day School.

Ivy League to Audit Member Schools As Precaution Against Aid Violations

One might as soon have expected to see a picture of Jerry Tarkanian standing between a pair of Rhodes scholars as to see a picture of the Princeton basketball team illustrating a story on athletic recruiting violations, but there it was in the New York Times last week.

The story reported that the Council of Ivy Group Presidents has decided to conduct an audit of the eight member schools to determine whether or not athletes are being offered an especially large amount of financial aid.

Smack in the middle of the story was a picture of the Tiger men's basketball team celebrating a win over UCLA in the NCAA tournament last month. In the early editions of the paper, the caption carried a line that read: "But no one is suggesting that Princeton's accomplishment is the result of aid violations." In the later editions, that line was removed.

Davidson Goldin, the Times reporter, wrote that in the Ivy League, "it is the quarterbacks and goalies who have the most help winning financial aid." His report stated that prospective athletes and their families "lean on coaches and athletic departments with vested interests in their matriculation to insure that they get the best aid package possible."

The article steps lightly around the issue of whether or not athletes actually receive more aid than their families need to pay for an Ivy League education.

The story suggested conflicting reasons for the decision to conduct an audit. A quote from Princeton University President Harold Shapiro, current chairman of the Council of Ivy Group Presidents, made it sound as though the process were simply part of an overall management plan agreed upon long ago, and was not taken to redress a specific problem.

Quoted in the same story, Donald Routh, Yale's director of financial aid, appeared to be of a different opinion. "The most common kind of case we deal with, where we feel the other school has been too generous with aid, involves athletes. Obviously, all schools are in competition for good athletes, and all Ivy League schools would argue that they offer only need-based aid. But I guess it's a question of how far you stretch it."

In a letter to the editor on Monday, Jeffrey Orleans, executive director of the Council of Ivy Group Presidents, challenged the truth of the article.

"Contrary to your April 5 news article," he wrote, "Ivy League presidents are confident that each institution's awards to athletes are based on the institution's own standards of financial need as applied to all students."

The proposed audit, he wrote, is "a regular administrative procedure." In a not-so-veiled slap at Mr. Routh, he continued, "Implications by one institution about others, such as you quote, are speculation."

Raider Teams Successful In Rain-Shortened Week

The Hun School's athletic teams didn't get to play as many contests as they expected this week, as bad weather intruded, but when they did take the fields they were invariably successful. Raider teams were 7-0 in contests played this week.

The Hun baseball team posted an 8-7 decision over Blair Academy before besting Academy of New Church 11-5.

Chris Moraitis was 4-for-4 for the Raiders in the first contest, with a double, a run scored, and three RBIs. Mike Piza was 2-for-4 with two doubles, a run scored, and three RBIs.

Winning pitcher Arthur Gross allowed live runs on six hits while striking out seven in his four-inning performance.

Against ANC, a six-run first inning set the pace for Hun. Moraitis was stellar again, going 4-for-5 with a double, three runs scored, and an RBI. Bryan Zolfinger was 4-for-5 with two doubles, one run scored, and two RBIs. Gross was 3-for-5 with a double, a run scored, and four RBIs.

The girls' lacrosse team was also 2-0 on the week. The Raiders opened their season by besting the George School in a 15-12 slugfest, then moved on with a 10-7 win over Stuart.

Against George, Joanne Deni scored six for the Raiders. Merin Kramer and Nina Tinari each had three, and Carla Ritchie, Beth Fallon, and Jane Carter each had one.

In goal, Meris Burton stopped 13 of 25 shots.

It was Burton's super goaltending that helped keep Stuart off the board in the first half of the next game. The Raiders were up 5-0 at the end of the first half, but needed more in the second half to light off a Stuart comeback.

Joanne Deni scored live for Hun, while Tinari had three and Kramer scored two. (For Stuart, Gia Fruscone and Sarah Gomez scored two each. Single tallies came from Alicia Fruscone, and Megan Hunter.

The Raider tennis team beat Ewing 3-2. A three-set win by the first doubles team of Shant Evanian and Emre Boyzligt was the clincher.

Rit Rice and Marshall Kemmer, playing at first and second singles, respectively, earned the other two Raider wins in straight sets.

The Raider boys' lacrosse team evened its record at 1-1 with a win over ANC. Seniors Bart Orr and Brendan Tierney paced the attack with four goals apiece. Mike Tierney added two, and Matt Zisler scored one.

In the goal, Trevor Tierney got credit for 12 saves.

The highlight of the week, in terms of individual accomplishment, was the performance of junior pitcher Jessica Beattie of the Hun softball team.

In retiring 21 consecutive Peddie School batters, Beattie posted the first perfect game in the 24-year history of the Hun softball team.

The Raiders won the game 3-0, with a little more help from Beattie. She and freshman Erin Cahill each drove in a run in the victory.

Schedule Light for PHS, Which Was Probably Good

In a week low on scheduled athletic events, bad weather trimmed the docket even further for Princeton High. But the way things went in the contests that were played, that might not have been a bad thing.

PHS fell in the only three events that were played this week, and did so by fairly wide margins.

The Tiger baseball team dropped a 15-1 decision to Lawrence High in last week's season opener. The 10-run rule was waived, because the Lawrence pitcher had a no-hitter going into the seventh inning. That bid was foiled by sophomore Frank Bernazard who, playing his first game in a Tiger uniform, led off the final inning by lacing a triple into the outfield. He went on to score Princeton's only run of the game.

The boys' lacrosse team led off with an expected loss to powerful Bridgewater-Raritan. Starting off against one of the better teams in the state, the inexperienced Tigers lost 14-2.

Senior Jason Carter and sophomore Carl Feller each scored for Princeton. Goalie Matt Bauerle was pounded with 30 shots, and made 16 saves.

Playing its first varsity match since the program was disbanded in the 1980s the Princeton High softball team was pounded 22-3 by Lawrence.

Princeton-Area Physician Charles Clark To Run 25th Consecutive Boston Marathon

Dr. Charles Clark was 36 years old when he ran his first road race in 1972. He wore leather Adidas running shoes, and in the back pocket of his tennis shorts he carried a $5 bill — cab fare, in case he couldn't finish.

The race was the Boston Marathon, and Dr. Clark, who had never run more than 12 miles at a stretch before that, still had the $5 bill in his pocket at the end of the day. "When I reached the 12-mile mark, I felt fine and just kept going," he said.

Since then, Dr. Clark has never missed the Boston Marathon. On Monday, at age 60, he will celebrate his 25th consecutive appearance in the race, running with his wife Cindy, his son, and his step-son.

They will join a crowd that may approach as many as 50,000 people in the 100th running of the storied marathon. The highly selective Boston Athletic Association usually allows about 9,000 runners to compete every year, but in this celebratory race, in spite of lowered qualifying times, there are 38,500 sanctioned participants.

Add to the mix an estimated 10-to-12 thousand runners expected to try to enter the race illegally, and the two-lane road through Hopkinton, Mass. that serves as a starting area is projected to be a real mob scene. It may take as long as a full hour for all of the runners to cross the starting line.

"Nobody knows what it's going to be like," says Dr. Clark. "It's chaos with 9,000 people."

A long-time Princeton area gastro-enterologist, Dr. Clark began running as a way of gaining some additional exercise after tennis matches. He became a member of the American Medical Joggers Association, and through that organization in 1972, he took one of the limited number of spots in the Boston race granted to non-qualifying runners.

It was the only time Dr. Clark would need help — he has qualified for the race every year since. This year all three of his running companions — wife, son, and step-son — qualified as well.

In 1972, his finishing time was 3 hours 39 minutes. By 1981, his best year, he had pared that down by nearly a full hour, to 2:42. This year he qualified with a time of 3 hours 38 minutes.

Running, for Dr. Clark, is a family affair. His son Scott began going to his father's races when he was 16 years old. At age 19, he finished first in his age group in the New York Marathon.

"It kind of runs in the family," says Dr. Clark. The pun, hopefully, unintended.

25 IN A ROW: Princeton-area gastro-enterologist Charles Clark will compete in his 25th consecutive Boston marathon on Monday.

It was through the Mercer-Bucks Running Club that Dr. Clark met his wife Cindy. Still active in the club, the doctor ascribes much of his improvement as a road racer to the club's support.

This June, for the third year in a row, he will serve as director of the Hospital Fete 10K run. "This has become one of the largest races in New Jersey," he reports. The event is scheduled for June 15.

Runs Year-Round

Over the years, Dr. Clark says, he has run "sporadically" in other marathons in the U.S. and Europe. His best time ever was 2:38, posted in the Jersey Shore Marathon.

While visiting his daughter in Barcelona, Spain, he raced in a marathon there. While visiting his stepson in Germany during the re-unification of the East and West, he ran in the Berlin Marathon. "It was very exciting," he recalls. "We ran through part of East Germany."

Dr. Clark runs year-round, but only trains in earnest for marathons in the two months preceding them. In getting ready for Boston, he says that he puts in 40 to 45 miles per week, with one long run on the weekends.

"I like to get in at least one 20-mile run three or four weeks before the marathon," he adds.

During the rest of the year, though, he trains at a less strenuous pace, averaging 30 miles per week. "The important thing is to pace yourself," he says. "I think it's important not to put in long, hard miles all year. Otherwise you'll wind up injured."

Age is a factor as well. At 60, reports the doctor, his training regimen must be less demanding. "You have to let your muscles and joints rest," he says.

Dr. Clark's worst finish in Boston was approximately 5,000th out of the 9,000 runner field. He normally expects to finish in the top 3,000. This year, however, the race is not so much a competition as a celebration.

"It's going to be impossible," he says. "It's basically a social event." Judging by qualifying times alone in the hyper-talented field, Dr. Clark would be projected to finish in 24,600th place.

In the 25 years since Dr. Clark ran his first race, much has remained constant in the Boston marathon. The roar of the crowd and the adrenaline rush at the start of the race still conspire to make it one of the more difficult races in the world.

"It's a tough one," Dr. Clark says. "It starts off downhill, and you get excited and run faster than you should. Then you get to Heartbreak Hill..."

But much has changed, as well. In 1972, Dr. Clark ran with the first group of women allowed in the race. There were six. This year, there will be thousands. Qualifying times have gone up and down, and so has the popularity of running as a recreational and fitness activity.

Over the years, Dr. Clark has changed too. At the starting line on Monday he won't look like the beginner who started racing 25 years ago. He'll be wearing lightweight nylon shoes, like the rest of the runners, and instead of tennis shorts, he'll wear specially-designed running clothes. And if he bothers to put cab fare in his back pocket, he'll know that in 1996, $5 won't even buy him a trip around the block.

and testimony from Princeton Medical Center at Zoning and Planning Board hearings on its needs and plans.

One option is keep the zoning as is. Another is to create a new zone for that particular area permitting residential and nonresidential uses in combination either within a single structure or among several structures. Whether this would be done floor by floor (i.e. first floor office, second floor residential as is the case in the professional office/residential (POR) zone along Harrison Street), or by a percentage, such as 40 percent of the total square footage residential and 60 percent office, has not been determined.

The third option that has been discussed is to permit nonresidential uses as a conditional use, but to impose certain requirements at the time an application is approved. These requirements could also be imposed for an application for mixed use.

They include such things as requiring "residential type planting," shade trees in front and rear yards; limiting parking to two vehicles per house and requiring it to be located behind the front facade; requiring curtains and blinds in all windows; stipulating that only incandescent lighting be used and that outside lighting be on a timer and turned off by 11 p.m.; prohibiting any signage except for the house of the additional standards which could be required if nonresidential uses were authorized, along with maintaining driveways as single width, unless they are shared. These standards would be in addition to the bulk standards that currently exist for the R-8 Zone, which includes the Harris Road houses in question.

The bulk standards call for a minimum lot size of 8,500 number; prohibiting dumpsters; and requiring that all heating, ventilating and air-conditioning equipment be screened and that noise buffering be provided where necessary.

Maintaining the landscaping and repairing deteriorated street curbs, sidewalks and driveway aprons is also part square feet; lot frontage of 30 feet; lot width and depth of 50 feet each; a maximum FAR (floor area ratio) of 30 percent; a maximum building height of 30 feet; and minimum setbacks of 25 feet in front, 15 feet in the rear; and eight feet on the side, or 20 feet both sides together.

The eight houses that Princeton Medical Center owns on the east side of Harris Road range in style and type, from single floor ranch to expanded cape to attached duplex. They are all quite small. There was discussion Tuesday morning at the third meeting of ZARC on what the zoning should be for these houses on how practical it would be to divide the space part office and part residential and how it should be done — floor by floor, or on a percentage basis.

There was also discussion of the discrepancy between the way the map accompanying the 1980 Princeton Community Master Plan was drawn, showing the line for hospital use behind the Harris Road houses, while the text of the Master Plan indicates that the hospital is to limit its activities to the block bounded by Witherspoon Street, Henry Avenue, Harris Road and Franklin Avenue. This implies that houses on the hospital side of Harris Road are part of that block. The Master Plan also says that the residential "character" of the houses is to be retained; it does not say that the houses must be kept in residential use.

Members of PPRP expressed concern that allowing the Medical Center to purchase houses on the east side of Harris Road and turn them into offices would set a "dangerous precedent" for other areas of town. They asked what entity would enforce the proposed nonresidential use standards, and when told it would be the Township zoning officer, they expressed scepticism.

Princeton Medical Center has been using some of the houses as offices for some time without authorization, was eventually cited by the zoning officer and brought to court. The magistrate imposed a $2,000 fine, and it was agreed that no further action would be taken pending a decision on the zoning issues that are under review for possible legislative action.

Norman Winarsky, a PPRP member, asked what uses the Medical Center is proposing in the houses. Christopher Tarr, attorney for the Medical Center, said that currently they are being used for accounting and public relations and by the Medical Center at Princeton Foundation, which he characterized as "low impact." Dennis Doody, president of the Medical Center, said that Lamaze classes were moved out of the houses because they were deemed "high impact" — as many as 20 people coming and going at different times — and accounting substituted because it involved only a few people who kept regular office hours.

Mr. Winarsky said the Medical Center should demonstrate a "compelling need" for the houses to justify a change in zoning that would have what he and other PPRP members call "significant damage" to the neighborhood. Mr. Tarr said that when the options are being discussed before Township Committee the Medical Center would provide that justification. However, some wanted ZARC to survey the space in the hospital as part of this review. Joseph O'Neill, a ZARC member, suggested that in addition to a definition of need, there should also be a definition of what constitutes "significant damage" to a neighborhood. In the end it was decided that ZARC would not conduct this inquiry, leaving it to Township Committee if it so desired.

Mr. O'Neill remarked at one point that although objectors have been coming with great regularity to all hearings and meetings on the hospital garage and on uses of the Harris Road houses, the many people who actually use the hospital have not been heard from. Mr. Tarr suggested that they would be present at the Township Committee hearings.

Mr. O'Neill also pointed out that the hospital is at its maximum floor area ratio, making it difficult to find space within the hospital if it wants to install MRI machinery or other medical technology. "When we put a cap on the FAR," Mr. O'Neill said, "we limit the hospital's ability to modernize itself. Margen Penick added that some of the changes in medical care are being driven by the state and the Planning Board cannot foresee what these changes might be.

"One of the worst outcomes would be to have a second rate hospital in town," she said.

By this time the discussion had gone on for more than two hours, and it was decided to try to bring it to closure, to see if there was a consensus, which there wasn't. Marvin Reed announced that he had written a memo and said he did not want to see hospital uses restored. In other words, he wanted to continue the situation that has prevailed since October when Township Committee deleted hospital use from all residential zones in the Township.

Mr. Reed said he did not think having hospital use on one side of the street and residential on the other was "good planning." He also said by not recommending one option or another, ZARC was shifting the discussion to the governing body, which has very little experience in zoning matters.

Mrs. Marchand said she did not want to commit herself to one option or another, because the matter would be coming before Township Committee and she could express herself there. However, she did say she was "leaning" toward keeping the zoning residential, because, as she put it, "I know the need." She also remarked that the standards for nonresidential use were too restrictive.

Bill Enslin said he did not think the mixed use was a viable option and preferred eling to provide "the best living circumstances for people" and said she would feel "very badly" for the living circumstances of anyone living in houses right next to the hospital. She spoke of unhealthy air quality for a child in a bedroom right next to the garage, for instance.

She suggested that the houses could function as a transition area between the gent views around the table. Mrs. Penick asked for each person to submit a one page opinion by Friday and for the whole package to be forwarded to Committee on Monday.

It is not likely that Committee will do anything on this matter right away. On Monday, April 15, finalizing the 1996 capital budget is expected to be the major topic on the agenda. On Monday, April 22, Committee is expected to introduce the three senior housing/assisted living and nursing home ordinances that have been forwarded to it from the Planning Board. There is a good deal of opposition from a different group of neighbors, the Northeast Princeton Residents Association, to ordinances having to do with the use of the tract on Terhune Road and Harrison Street that belongs to Princeton Shopping Center.

Mayor Tuck has said she will allow plenty of time for public discussion of these ordinances, so that until they are adopted, or some conclusion reached, it is unlikely that Committee will tackle the zoning of the Harris Road houses.

ther residential or nonresidential. Mr. O'Neill said he preferred mixed use. Allowing mixed use in hospital owned residences would provide a transition, allowing the hospital time to plan its own future without having to immediately build a new building when it runs out of space for a particular activity.

Mrs. Penick's preference was for mixed use or nonresidential. She spoke of the Planning Board's role in try-hospital and the "good living area" of the neighborhood. Permitting mixed use or nonresidential use would allow the hospital to use the houses and yet put some controls on the use.

Mayor Tuck, who is also a member of ZARC, had departed by the time this straw vote was taken. Mrs. Penick suggested that she would probably want to defer as a member of Township Committee as Mrs. Marchand had done. Seeing that there were diver-

Another issue dividing the two sides was the amount of pupil contact time, with the School Board seeking to extend it 45 minutes from the current four and a half hours per day.

In the teachers' contract that expired June 30, 1995, salaries ranged from $32,683 for first-year teachers with a bachelor's degree to $75,329 for teachers who have been in the district 25 years and who hold a doctorate. The two-year contract had given teachers a 5.5 percent salary increase each year.

The School board at its Tuesday night meeting was also expected to vote on a resolution that would extend School Superintendent Marcia Bossart's contract another year, to 1999. Dr. Bossart was given a four-year contract in 1994. The School Board this year has to decide whether to renew her contract for another one to three years, or whether to vote against renewal.

The contract vote is expected to be very close, possibly 5-4, and it appears likely that the contract will be renewed. One question is whether Bill Persons, the representative from Cranbury, will be eligible to vote. He is permitted to vote only if the issue affects the high school, since Cranbury sends its students to Princeton High.

The School Board is not expected to renew Leigh Byron's contract as principal

The evening will include networking and dinner, followed by a keynote address, "Women Awakening," by Lorette S. Piper, RSCJ. Sister Piper is associate chaplain of Bordentown Medium Security Prison and Somerset County Jail. With more than 16 years of experiential work with addictions, she is engaged in retreat work and spiritual direction.

Participants have a choice of six workshops. They include "Pass It On: Eating Disorders from Generation to Generation"; "Relationship Addictions; Can't Live With You, Can't Live Without You"; "Addicted Fathers: Impact on Their Daughters"; "Spirituality: An Approach to Healing Through Meditation and Body Awareness Techniques"; "Yoga: Its Therapeutic Use in the Healing Process" and "Uncovering Addictions, Asking the Right Question," for those whose primary work focus is not addiction.

Elizabeth M. Hogrelius, nee Dayspring died April at her residence at Meadow Lakes, Hightstown.

Born May 8, 1911 in Totowa, Mrs. Hogrelius had lived since 1961 in West Windsor Township until moving to Hightstown three years ago. Prior to moving to the Princeton area, she had lived in Hillsdale and in Woodcliff Lake in Bergen County's Pascack Valley area. She had been an active member of Holy Trinity Episcopal Church, Hillsdale and later, of All Saints' Episcopal Church, Princeton. For many years, Mrs. Hogrelius served as directress of All Saints' Altar Guild, and was on the Diocese of New Jersey's Altar Guild. In addition, she was an active member of the Companions of the Holy Cross and the Colonial Dames.

As a young woman, Mrs. Hogrelius was active as a Girl Scout and her interest continued into adulthood where she became a life-long advocate of Girl Scouting. Her work in scouting included an affiliation as a counselor at Camp Te Ata, Central Valley, N.Y. and leadership training at Camp Edith Macy. Later, she served as a leader of Troop 8 in Hillsdale.

For many years, Mrs. Hogrelius served as a reporter for the Hillsdale Herald and the Westwood Chronicle, local newspapers in the Pascack Valley, reporting on area social and political events. She was an active member of the Hillsdale Public Schools Parents and Teachers Association and a founding member and former president of Holy Trinity's Junior Guild. Her later career culminated in work as executive secretary for Robert Stokstad and John King, both of The American Cyanamid Company.

In retirement, Mrs. Hogrelius acted as secretary and office manager for the Rev. Dr. A. Orley Schwartzentruber, former rector of All Saints' Episcopal Church, and for Harry Heher of Heher, Clarke & St. Landau.

She is survived by her husband, Olof W. Hogrelius; a brother, Joseph Dayspring of Fairfield; a son, Olof W. Hogrelius Jr. of Tucson, Ariz.; two daughters, Judith L. Hardardt of New Vernon, and Jennifer M. Dehlinger of Staten Island, N.Y.; six grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren.

Funeral services were held on April 4 at All Saints' Episcopal Church. Burial was private. Arrangements were under the direction of Kimble Funeral Home. In lieu of flowers, donations may be made to All Saints' Episcopal Church, Princeton.

Sarah Blackwell Harris, 89, a longtime Princeton resident, teacher and organist, died April 1 at her grandnephew's home. Born in Princeton, she was a life-long area resident.

Mrs. Harris was educated in the Princeton public school system and received her master's degree from Trenton State College. She taught math and science for 45 years, spending most of her teaching career at the Quarry Street School. She also taught in the Trenton school system.

Mrs. Harris was a lifelong member of Witherspoon Street Presbyterian Church where she served as organist from 1940 to 1978. She also volunteered for the Red Cross and the New Jersey School for Boys in Skillman. She was a charter member of Phi Delta Kappa sorority, PI Chapter of Trenton.

Yeager, two nieces, Carolyn Yeager Hughes of Trenton and Bernadette Yeager of Israel; a nephew, John C. Yeager Jr. of Princeton; and several great-nephews, great-nieces, great-great-nieces, great-great-nephews, cousins and godchildren.

HOW DOES YOUR GARDEN GROW?

Do you want to get your garden off to a clean start? Begin with Seeds of Change — the finest open-pollinated, certified organic seeds available.

WHY CHOOSE ORGANIC SEEDS?

Large amounts of chemicals are used in the raising of conventional seeds. Before their sale, they are often coated with a fertilizer, pesticide, or fungicide. Raised on certified organic farms, seeds from Seeds of Change are free of added toxins & pesticides. By selecting Seeds of Change, gardeners can support small organic farmers & keep unwanted chemicals out of their garden.

WHY OPEN-POLLINATION?

Commercial hybrids are rapidly replacing traditional "open-pollinated" varieties. This means scientists are now doing what the bees, birds, & wind do best. These hybrids are often developed to emphasize traits — such as longer shelf life — that benefit commercial food production. In the process, nutrition & flavor may be compromised. Seeds of Change chooses plants for their superior flavor, productivity, & nutritional value. They offer many varieties of Heirlooms & Native Traditionals selected over generations by farmers around the world. Choosing Seeds of Change represents a commitment to maintaining diversity in the food chain & variety on the dinner table.

TS Hints for Health Family Advice Column: The whys of teen drug abuse

The Rev. Peter K. Stimpson

I am a parent with a teenager who uses drugs. While I have explained how drugs will physically affect him, my son seems to have heard this ad nauseum in school. I'm not sure how to reach him. Do you have any ideas?

While the ill effects of drug abuse are well-documented, the reasons behind the abuse strangely receive less attention. I would suggest talking to your son to discover why he takes drugs.

Discovering his motivation gets more to the core of the problem, let alone getting you and him closer. But, for the time being, consider these five reasons.

1. PEER PRESSURE: Many teens experiment with drugs rather than running the risk of seeming odd or abnormal. The desire for acceptance and the fear of rejection are powerful emotions. But, as "you can't please all the people all the time", parents should encourage autonomy and independent thinking. Teens may discover that the courage of their convictions may win them some true friends and challenge those who are so insecure that they must pressure others.

2. REBELLION: Instead of having learned condescendingly to please others, some adolescents express their desire for independence by breaking rules that they know will "drive my parents crazy". Yet, this is an example of cutting one's nose to spite one's face, the drug abuse hurting self more than others. Teens should be encouraged to express their anger, but to do so in ways which will help rather than hinder their own growth.

3. IDENTIFICATION: Still other teens use drugs not to rebel against parents, but to identify with them. If a parent breggs about how much liquor they can hold, or makes a ritual of "tying one on" every Saturday night, the adolescent may see drug abuse as a rite of passage into adulthood. So, condemning smoking pot while sipping your fourth martini sends a dangerous double message.

4. PLEASURE: Some use marijuana to relax and be sociable, while others gravitate to stronger drugs such as cocaine, hoping to flee depression and find perfect happiness. Yet, the pursuit of happiness is an ongoing and challenging process rather than an attainable goal, and its relative achievement is won by facing life rather than escaping from it.

5. MEANING: Amazingly, some teens are again turning to hallucinogen drugs like LSD in a search for meaning, hoping their "trip" will bring them from a state of boredom or emptiness to an esoteric and even religious level of profound insight. What a sad commentary this is upon our often shallow and materialistic culture, and what a strong calling for organized religion to take a stronger and more proactive stance on leading us back to a better sense of values and priorities.

Peter Stimpson to answer a question of yours on family life, daily living or emotional health, you can write to him at: Trinity Counseling Service, 22 Stockton Street, Princeton, N.J. 08540. Trinity Counseling, supported by the Diocese of New Jersey, provides counseling on a sliding fee scale for all who need help and support. PONDER THIS PRINCETON: Is Gary Grover crazy, to be feared, to be jailed, to be shunned? Or is he on the right track worthy of support perhaps even admiration? The answer to the first question is "no," according to those who know him well, those who've really listened to and/or studied him, but not for those who've wronged him, and they just fear legal repercussions. As to the second, he's succeeded as a student, athlete, corporate administrator, entrepreneur, volunteer, man, and he's publicly stood up for what he believes in, because he's right, despite being wronged by many at great personal expense. So you decide, but first try to imagine that you had walked in his shoes. Presented as always by Gary S Grover

REAL ESTATE AND YOU

By Tod Peyton

NO-RISK LISTING

You have decided to move, but you are afraid to put your present home in the Princeton area on the market until you have found a new one and completed purchase negotiations. You have found that most sellers are reluctant to finalize offers from buyers who must include a contingency that calls for the sale of a current residence before settling on the new one.

If you are in such a dilemma, the first step is to contact a professional Realtor. The agent can show you how to list your home without the risk of putting your family out on the street. When you have a firm contract from a qualified buyer, you will become much more attractive to sellers, and when you do find the perfect home, you will greatly increase your chances of being able to buy it.

For dependable individual advice on buying or selling real estate, call Tod Peyton, Realtor or any Peyton Associate at 921-1550. Please feel free to stop by my office at 343 Nassau Street in Princeton.

Consisting of two lots with a total frontage of 31 feet on Nassau Street and a depth of 300 feet, the property adjoins the United Jersey Bank East Nassau Branch. The two-story stucco building dates from the late nineteenth century and contains a total of approximately 1500 square feet divided between two floors with one half bath and one full bath, plus ample basement space. The front lot, zoned neighborhood business, can be used, as now, for offices, or limited retail, or mixed use residential, and the presently undeveloped back lot for additional parking, all subject to Princeton Borough zoning regulations. Other improvements include a raised brick entry porch at the front of the building and a lovely walled garden at the back which leads to a paved parking area for approximately nine cars.

WHAT DOES YOUR HEART DESIRE?

A little house in the "country" but not too rural? We are only 6.1 miles from the center of civilization...Princeton's Palmer Square.

Old world charm but with today's conveniences? All bathrooms are updated and the kitchen was recently remodeled.

Renovate, decorate, but not too much? The important systems have been modernized and the interiors are done in a very neutral palette.

A bit of land, it must be private and have some character...perhaps a pond?

Oh, yes we have all of the above and more!

Offered at $459,900.

Call Cynthia Torruellas to see your heart's desire in Hopewell Township.

Monthly payments are for 30-year conventional fixed rate mortgages as detailed below.
Please ask about Lower Downpayments • Lower Monthly Payments • Other Options

For purchase prices up to $253,937, monthly mortgage payments (principal+interest) quoted in our ads are to qualified buyers, based upon a 20% downpayment and a conventional 30-year fixed rate loan at 7.125% with 3 points, A.P.R. 7.431%. As an example, a $100,000 loan would mean 360 monthly payments of $673.72. For purchase prices from $253,938 to $625,000, the monthly payments are to qualified buyers based upon a 20% downpayment and calculated at 7.375% with 3 points on a "Jumbo" 30-year fixed rate mortgage with an A.P.R. of 7.685%. An example of a $500,000 loan would mean 360 monthly payments of $3,453.38. Figures herein are approximate and do not include property taxes, hazard insurance, or homeowners association dues for a condominium purchase. Interest rates quoted are as of Jan. 2, 1996, and subject to change. Not responsible for typographical errors, while information is believed accurate we request that the payment be validated with a mortgage provider prior to purchase.
